Andrea -
Hi! This year has been fun - it's not over yet. I hope you don't drown in your own tears on graduation day! I've really liked being in ELP w/ you! Catherine Massey

Andrea,

Another year gone by. Seniors at last!
I still remember crying on the last day of school in the 1st grade. You are my best friend in the world. I hope we'll be like this forever. Thanks for everything you've done for me, for all of the shoulders to cry on, for all of the advice, the listening.
I know I can tell you everything without fear of being judged.
I Love you for being you & for always being there for me. If you ever need anything don't hesitate, I'll always be there for you.

I Love you! Trina

P.S. Can't wait to D.H.?

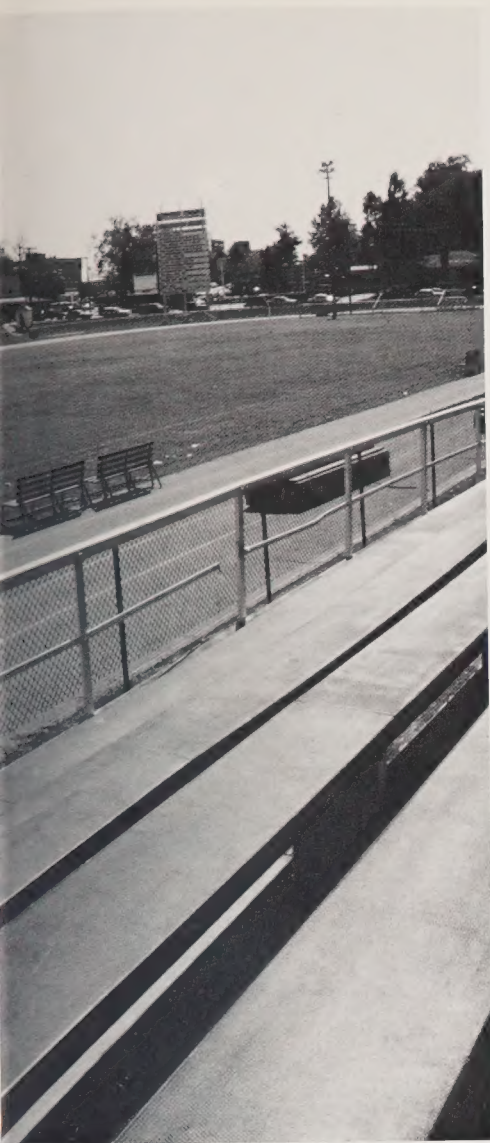

The Hendersonville High School Bearcat is a symbol of the excellence of the school. This tradition lives on even after the merger.

HHS has been through many physical changes in the past three years. One thing that will never change is the famous auditorium entrance.

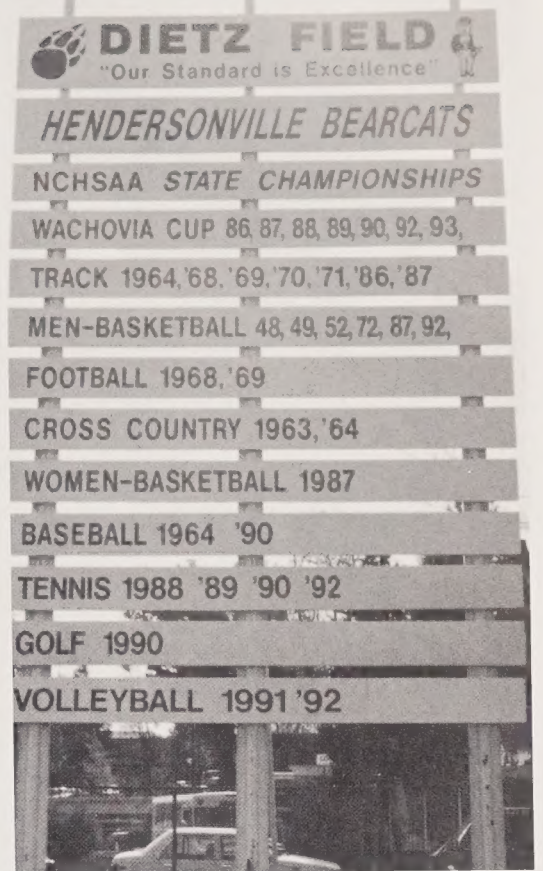

Some Things Never Change

Dietz Field is the home of the Bearcats. The spirit and pride that lives there will only grow over time.

Lunch lines have and will always be part of the students' lives. One can always find something to discuss during these long waits.

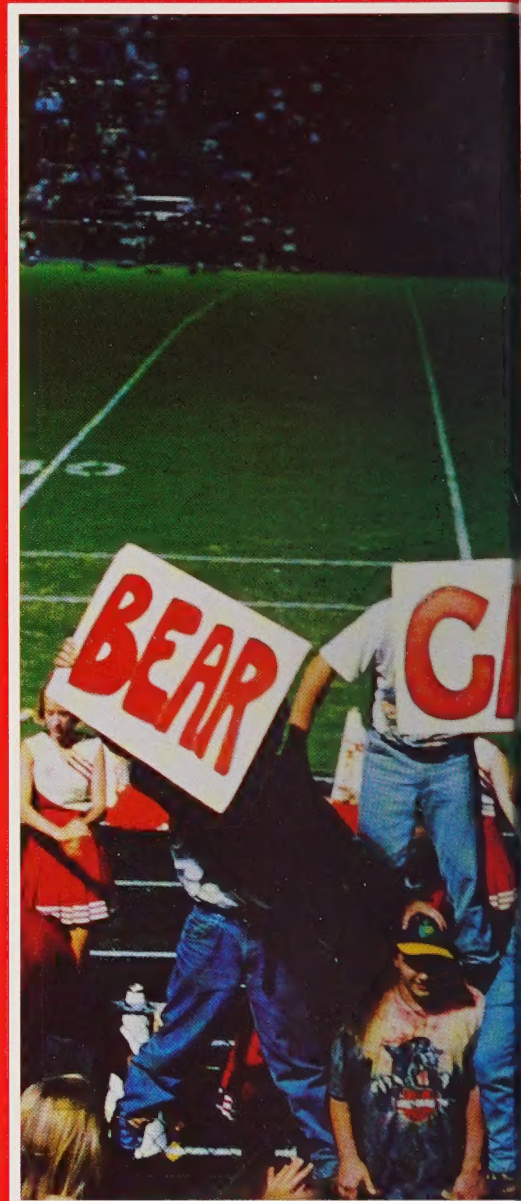

State championships have been a big part of the tradition at HHS. The Dietz Field sign illustrates this tradition to everyone that passes.

The sundial has always been a place for everyone to gather during lunch. This is a tradition that will live on forever.

HHS has always had a strength in athletics. From football to golf, almost everyone participates in some way.

"Being a part of a team is something you have to earn. Even though our team has grown larger, our Bearcat traditions of pride, touch of class, and excellence have remained the same."

-Sharman Norman

The opening of the school year was filled with questions. What would it be like? Who would be there? Would classes be different? Who would be the new teachers? Once school started, the questions were answered. Everyone quickly adjusted to the concept of the Henderson County Public Schools, whether we wanted to or not. When it all came together, we knew that

SOME THINGS NEVER CHANGE.

Friday night football games always bring out the spirit in the students of HHS.

Students have always been concerned about our school. This group takes advantage of the early morning hours to pray for Hendersonville High School.

Student Life

Hendersonville High School students are in pursuit of excellence in everything they do. Whether in academics, vocations, arts, athletics, or extra-curricular activities, tradition and pride that only a Bearcat know are present. Every year, the spirit of the students increases, and attendance and participation at games and activities prove that this year is no different. No matter how much change is brought about, the student body proves that SOME THINGS NEVER CHANGE.

"One thing you can always count on at HHS — people here aren't afraid to express themselves and be themselves. You can be part of a clique, or you can be an individual. We've got a 'live-and-let-live' policy."

-Birch Polega

"I think what makes the students at HHS unique is their attitude. We are probably one of the most positive student bodies around."

-Toya Parks

"The smallness of our school makes us, the students, closer in our friendships. What makes us so unique is that everyone is friends with everyone else."

-Sarah Bratsch

Not everyone ventured far from home during the summer. Tracie Gold preferred to stay nearby as she poses on a trail one and a fourth miles above sea level.

Students attending Outward Bound in the Appalachian Mountains enjoy a break from the action. They are "relaxing" on the top of Mt. Tennent at an elevation of 6,040 feet.

"Going on 'The Pilgrimage to World Youth Day' was a great experience. People from all over the world came to be together and to see the Pope. When the Pope came, he didn't just preach to us, he came to be with us."

- Shawn Farrell

Selection for Governor's School is a great honor. Kristen Terebelski and Emily Sherrill enjoy a hug from Mr. Governor's School East 1993 in Laurinburg.

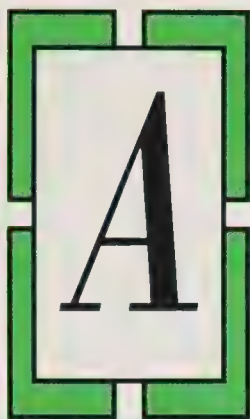

While spending the summer in Africa, Patrick Eaton had the chance to work with underprivileged children, an experience he found to be very rewarding.

From the mountains to the ocean, summer was an adventure!

Without a doubt, the students of HHS had a sensational summer. Many took on full-time or part-time jobs while others took the opportunity to explore different cultures and parts of the world. Several students were lucky enough to win scholarships to attend Outward Bound, a program focusing on survival skills in the wilderness. The Keywanettes spent time at Myrtle Beach during their annual beach trip. Even those who did not venture far from home had a blast. There was plenty of sun and always a pool nearby. When August rolled around, school began, and everyone had plenty of memories and stories to be told.

The beauty of the mountains and waters of Maine set the scene for Elizabeth Voorhees' vacation this summer. Here, she prepares to test the waters.

Members of the volleyball team headed for the courts at camp this summer. It was an opportunity to improve their skills and bond at the same time.

Everybody's favorite American, Mark Morais, looked kind of lost when a camera found him in Europe. He spent over a month this summer exploring the continent.

On the annual Keywanette beach trip, a group of lovely ladies pose for a picture after a seafood dinner. By the smiles on their faces, the food must have been scrumptious.

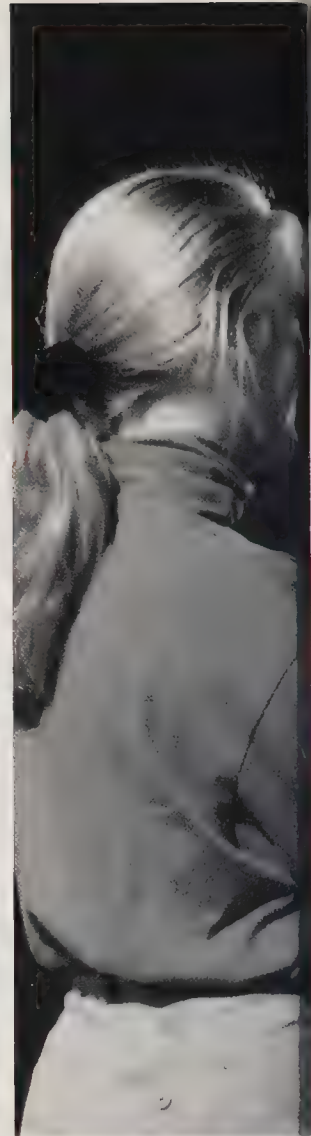

Spirit in Motion: A Tradition Of Excellence

The students of Hendersonville High School always look forward to Homecoming Week because it is the most spirit-filled week of the year. Homecoming activities not only included the football game and the dance but also spirit days such as Tacky Day, Hat/Tie Day, Dress-up Day, Pajama Day, and Red and White day, as well as the Powderpuff game. This event gave the ladies of the school an opportunity to switch places with the gentlemen; the ladies, paired into Freshman-Junior and Sophomore-Senior teams, played a tough game of football, while the guys experienced the difficulties of cheerleading and competed for the honor of being named Powderpuff Queen. The continued successful participation of the student body in Spirit Week promoted the traditional unity of the school and showed once again that SOME THINGS NEVER CHANGE.

Amazing sportsmanship carried the Freshman-Junior team to a narrow victory. Stacie Leland dazzles the opposing team as she carries the ball toward the goal line.

Some teachers enjoy planning out their participation in Spirit Week. Would the real Mr. Brown please step forward?

Being the quarterback isn't as easy as it looks! Leslie Laughter hurriedly looks for an open team member to pass to as she is assaulted by an unidentified opponent.

Decorating banners is an integral part of the preparation for Homecoming. Natalie Rhodes helps her homeroom class paint a banner to encourage the team to win.

Choosing one lucky "lady" to receive the honor of being named Powderpuff Queen is always difficult. After much decision (and many pennies), "Cristina" Wright is crowned.

Do these guys look like professionals or what? Mike Douglas, Bobby Christian, and Lucas Nilo pump up the crowd with their spirited cheerleading antics.

Competition to be a member of the Powderpuff Court is fierce. These beautiful guys and gals stop for a moment to get a picture before they appear on the field.

Bobby Christian looks as though he can't believe he's doing this bit as he and the rest of the Powderpuff Cheerleaders pause to strut their stuff for the camera after a hard night's work.

"I think that spirit week is really important because it allows people to relax a little bit, have fun, and, at the same time, show how much they care about their school."

Are there too many people on board? Preston Pierce and Shawn Farrell manage to crack a smile as they wonder if the railing of the truck is strong enough to hold everyone.

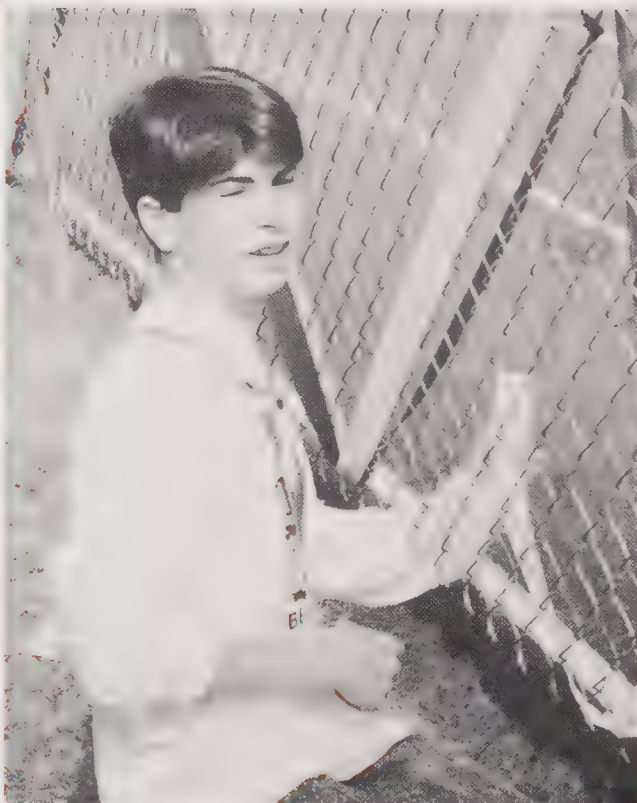

The Bearcat football team displays their might before the Homecoming game. They smash through this sign as easily as they smashed through Polk County's football team.

"I think it is a great experience for the entire school to get together and do something that is enjoyable, constructive, and unifying. That we can do something like that and have everyone participate says a lot about our school."

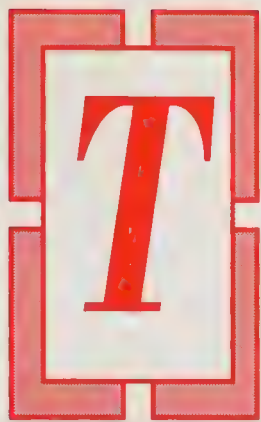

- Walt Cottingham

Sometimes, decorating can be more work than it's cracked up to be. Jarredd Simons looks for help in freeing his arm after working too hard before Homecoming.

The Homecoming Dance was as energetic as it usually is. Daphne Todd, Ryan Smith, Ali LaGrange, Robert Todd, Sabrina Freeman, and Stephanie Miller take a break from the excitement.

raditions of Homecoming:

Football, Fireside, and Friends

Homecoming weekend is always something for Bearcats to look forward to. The events began with the decorating of the football field on Friday, when the students and teachers were allowed to miss half a day of classes. Each homeroom picked a section of Dietz Field for their decorations and put their creativity to use in attempting to make their area the best. Then came the game itself; the Bearcats played Polk County as students, faculty, and family alike cheered them on. The Bearcats came away with a hard-earned victory over Polk, 28-27. Finally came the semi-formal Homecoming Dance on Saturday night. The events of the Homecoming weekend continued the long-lasting tradition of spirit here at HHS.

We all like to show our school spirit, but sometimes things get out of hand. Molly McKee wonders if the enthusiasm has gone too far as she finishes putting up her "GORED" sign.

The bonfire on Thursday night was a spirit-filled gathering indeed. Dwayne McMillian gathers with friends after the parade to shout his support for the Bearcats.

Persistence pays off. With the wind and the commotion around him, it took several tries, but Mr. Foreman finally does manage to balance the crepe paper on his nose.

Tacky is as tacky does. Whitney Kirkman casts a weary eye at Tucker Voorhees as she wonders if he is really dressed up for Tacky Day or if this is just natural for him.

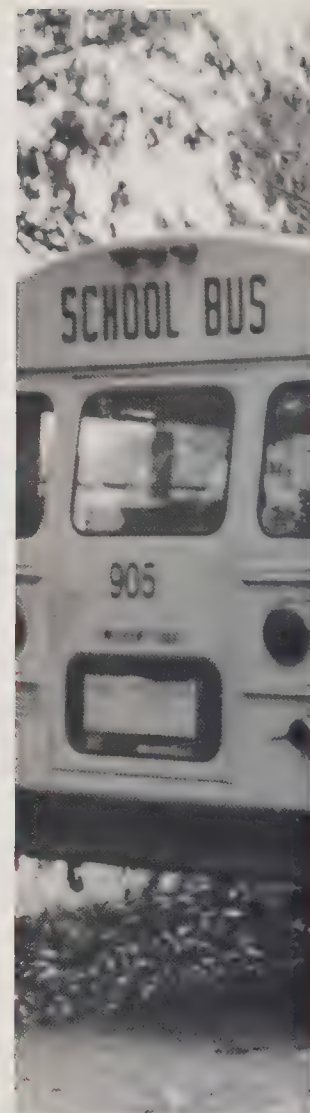

oad Test

Does your car
make the grade?

Fords, Hondas, Volvos, Toyotas - they all lined the streets of HHS this year. Often times, students expressed their personalities with the types of car they chose to drive. Spoilers, sun roofs, and security systems added that extra "touch" that sometimes set one car apart from any other. For busy students, the car was a necessity to be at all meetings, practices, and activities that they were expected to attend. For some, the car was the key to a healthy social life. Regardless of the purpose, transportation played an important role in the life of every student, giving them the freedom and independence vital to every teenager.

Double take! Sisters Jennifer and Rebecca Woodruff sit upon the hoods of their Toyota Tercels, color coded so they don't become confused.

The spirit of HHS is displayed through the red and white cars seen on campus.

With the merger of school systems this year came the school bus. Students who may have walked before now had a new means of transportation

The Hendersonville Bearcat license plate was an added effect on many cars and trucks. It is an opportunity to display to everyone the pride students take in our school.

Those students who did not drive new cars sometimes chose to restore older vehicles. Kevin Collins, Steve Jones, and Sandy McCrary stand beside their 1966 Mustangs.

Daphne Todd's Volvo, affectionately called "Ovlov," is adorned with balloons, honoring her selection as Homecoming Queen.

"Things will be different when I have a car because I won't have to bum rides off everyone else!"

- Colin Skidmore

Learning an advanced subject is hard enough, much less in a foreign country. Markus concentrates on studying before school.

This year, HHS had the privilege of knowing these three outstanding foreign exchange students: Markus Sholz, Jorge Casado, and Johanne Svenson.

"I think this is a very good experience for me. I've learned a lot of things, met a lot of people, and gone to a lot of places. There were some differences I had to get used to. It was hard, and I think I didn't get it all. I really received a lot of help from everyone, and I appreciated it."

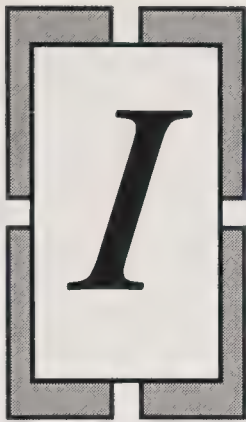

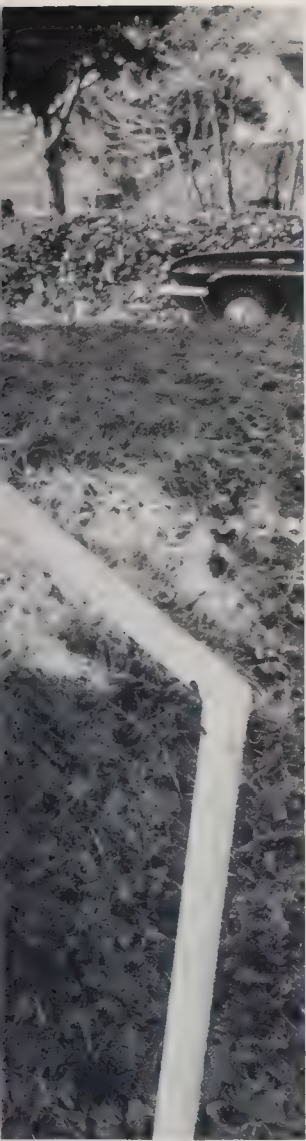

"I hope you all get more interested in soccer because the World Cup '94 is coming...What are you going to do?"
- Jorge Casado

"Where is my homework?" Johanne searches endlessly for her long-lost homework paper.

The cafeteria offered some of the finest American cuisine. Jorge dines on his scrumptious meal.

Imports

Around the World for 180 Days...

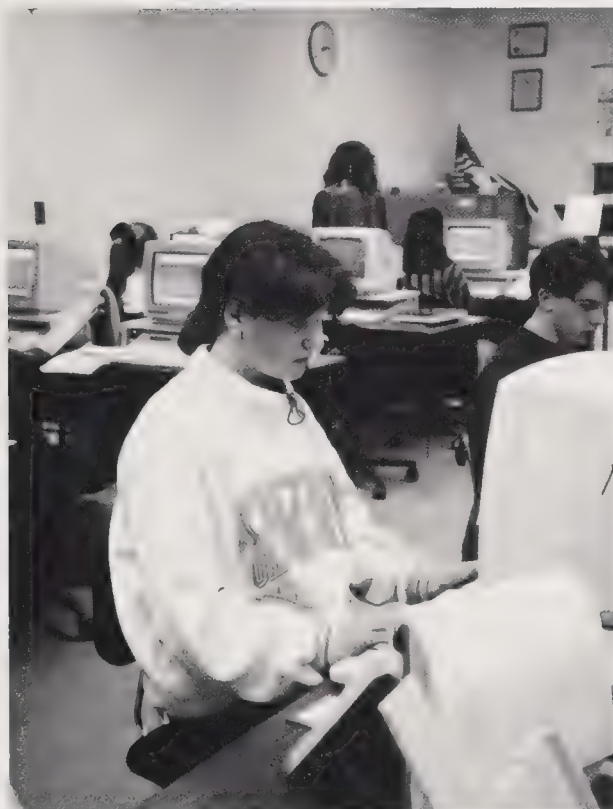

Coming to a foreign country where a person doesn't know anyone can be a difficult obstacle to overcome. Every year, foreign exchange students from across the globe face this obstacle as many set foot on American soil for the first time.

This year, we received three unique students: Jorge Casado from Spain, Markus Scholz from Germany, and Johanna Svennson from Sweden. No time was wasted for them to fit in. They were immediately welcomed by the entire student body, and they became involved in various extra-curricular activities around campus. Each one participated on an athletic team: Jorge was a standout on the soccer team this past fall; Markus made waves in the pool, and Johanna scored baskets on the court.

Johanna summed up her feelings by saying, "I have always loved to travel, and spending a year in the United States has been an exciting experience. What I like about America is that it has so many different things and types of people to offer. I have really enjoyed my stay in Hendersonville and will miss my host family and friends a lot when I leave."

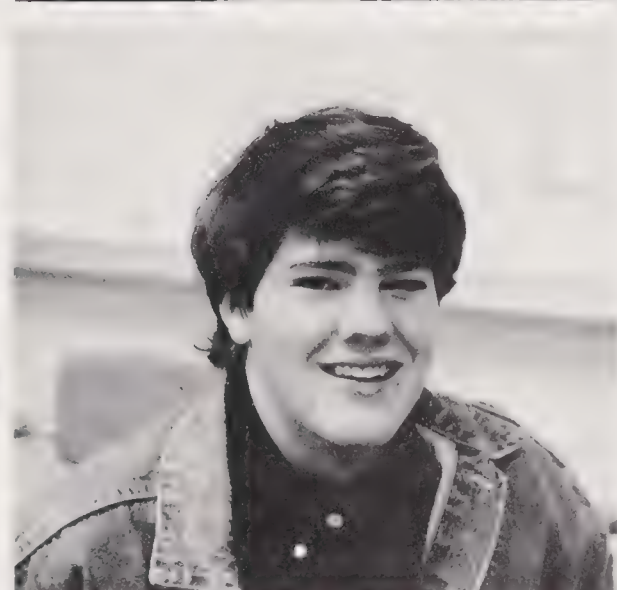

This great country offers plenty of opportunity to anyone who comes here. This opportunity was available to our foreign exchange students at HHS.

Markus Scholz enjoys eating lunch with his friends. How do you like those fries?

Using her English skills to compose at a keyboard, Johanna concentrates on creating a masterpiece.

When asked about being an American in France, Bryce, a sophomore, replied, "It was full of changing, new and rewarding experiences."

Family Ties

School Becomes A Family Affair

It just wasn't enough for some HHS students to live with their brothers and sisters day in and day out - sharing food, bathrooms, and sometimes bedrooms. Some siblings attended school together five days a week - passing in the halls, sitting across the room from each other in class, and fighting over the car in the afternoons. "Having my sister at school has been great because it's nice to watch her experience the same fun times at HHS that I had," commented Chris Wright. There can be other bonuses. Siblings close in age often shared a group of friends and hung out together on the weekends. Brothers and sisters were also good for lending lunch money and clothes. Even stressful situations became easier when the smiling face of a family member appeared out of nowhere.

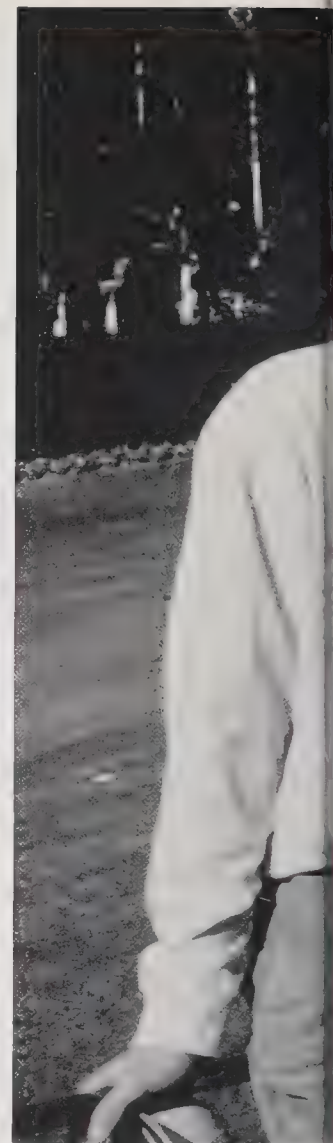

"I love my little sister Carrie, even though she tries to kill me a lot." - Katherine Pryor

"Jennifer is one of my best friends. I can't imagine what it will be like when she leaves after next year." - Will Sinclair

"Aimee is always busy. There's never a moment she isn't doing something, yet she's always positive." - Mike Adams

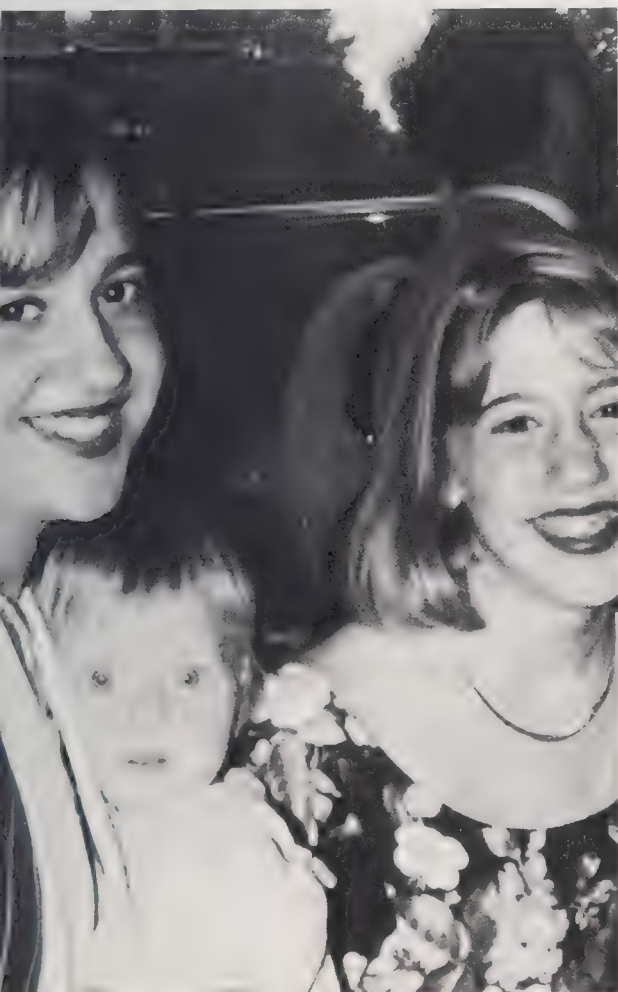

"For being brother and sister, Kevin and I get along really well. He even cooks me breakfast sometimes." - Tanya King

"Having three sons at HHS reminds me of The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly. Not really. I feel fortunate to have seen more sides of my children than most people." - Mrs. Lovvorn

"Mike makes great pizzas. He's good to our dog and I know he will miss me next year!" - Mary Pelz

"Sarah is the nicest person I've ever known. I'm proud to have her as a sister and a friend." - Mary Bratsch

"Travis may be bigger, but I will always be older and, of course, smarter. I love him very much, and it's going to be hard to go to college without my best friend and protector." - Sarah Kimmey

"It's nice having my brother at school because I no longer have to pick him up at the junior high school every day."

- Rebecca Greene

Snow brings out the child in all of us. Dawn Brown and Amy Pyles play on their big, bouncy ball.

As the snow begins, winter clothes begin to pile up. Erin Flynn sports a rag wool hat as Brooke Chapman tries to keep warm with some big gloves.

"Mydad and I went outside to play in the snow in his four-wheel-drive Cherokee. Unfortunately, the jeep died and we were stuck!"

- Jeremy Merrill

Some people were actually snowed out of their houses. Sky and Birch Polega were snowed in in Boone with some of their friends.

Snow blanketed everything. Despite the cold, Ali LaGrange, Molly McKee, Daphne Todd, and Stephanie Miller get out into the snow.

Winter Wonderland

*Let It Snow! Let it Snow!
Let It Snow!*

The Blizzard of '93 hit Henderson County in a big way. With a full week off from school, many students took the opportunity to spend time having fun and doing the unusual. Lane Cooper remembers, "I tied one end of a rope to an inner tube and the other to my dog. He pulled me around." Adam McGlashan recalls playing Monopoly every day. Robert Todd ventured a little further from home. "James and I got very bored being stuck inside, so we bundled up and walked seven miles across town to see our friends." Daphne Todd didn't make it quite so far. "I was in my uncle's dump truck. It fell into a ditch and we were stuck." Kristen Terebelski's family had unexpected company. "Our neighbor, who owns the Park Deli Cafe, and who is a wonderful cook, got stuck at our house for four days. Needless to say, we ate great food all of the time!" No matter how you spent the week, the blizzard was a memorable event for everyone.

If a car won't work, why not use a four-wheeler? Kevin Collins sits atop his four-wheeler and prepares to head into town.

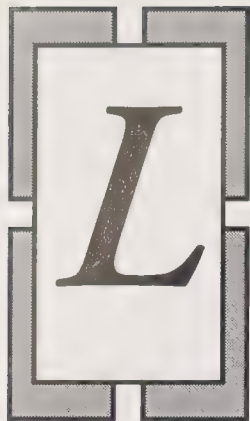

Icy roads are dangerous to drive on, but quite useful for sledding. Stephanie Piscitelli and her sister slide down an ice-covered road.

Everybody duck! A deceitful glance crosses Amy Wilson's face as she considers starting an all-out snowball war.

After the blizzard, cars were ultimately immovable. With a few feet of snow surrounding this car, it was probably stuck for days.

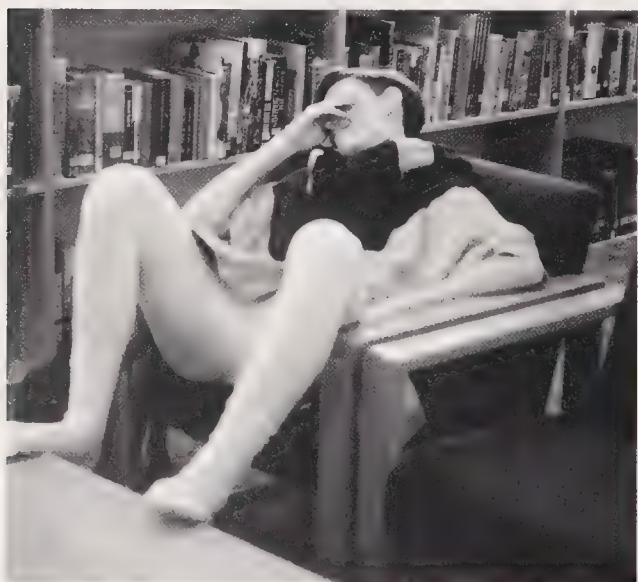

Life on Campus

A Picture's Worth A Thousand Words

Have you ever taken a moment to look at the expression on a senior's face before taking one of Mr. Cottingham's tests or the redness in a junior's eyes after staying up all night to type "the" research paper. Sometimes life got to be so hectic that we didn't get the chance to observe the happenings around us. Hall conversations and lunch time frolics often told the story of what went on behind the scenes of academic excellence. So, in an attempt to preserve some of these moments throughout the year, this page contains a candid look at the HHS student body.

A moment alone is often hard to come by during school hours. These two students spent time together in the parking lot after lunch.

It appears the camera caught Ashley Barber a bit off guard. Or could this be the stress before AP Chemistry?

In Medieval attire, Garrett Noegel drifts away into the Middle Ages as he naps in the library.

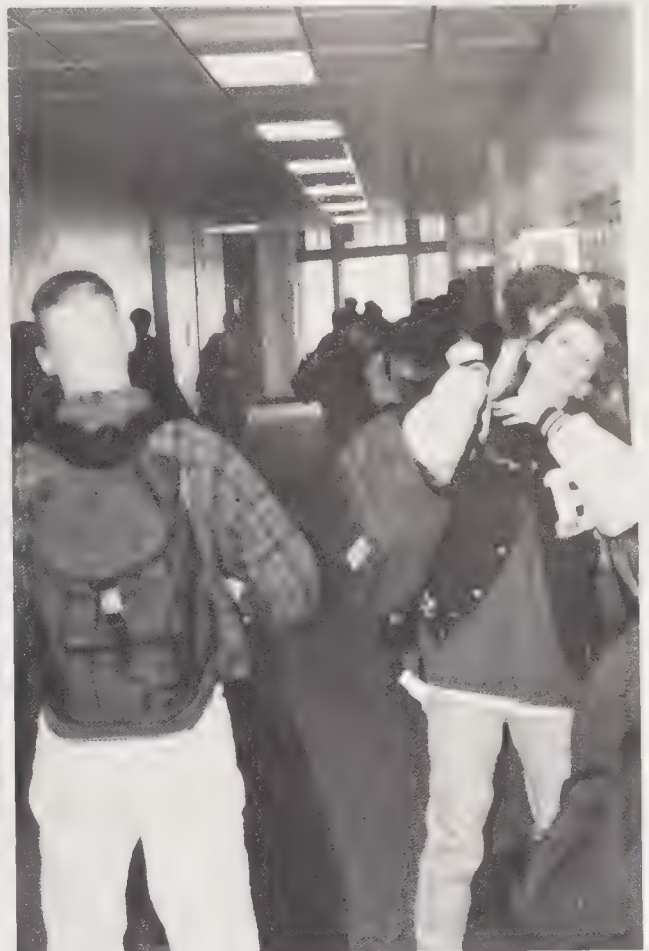

A very studious Angus Bennett has no time to say "cheese" while he concentrates on a very important test.

After a hearty lunch, these freshmen enjoy catching up on the day's gossip. Or were they trying to figure out where their next class is?

In a rush to get to class on time, and as the lockers slam, Leslie Laughter slings her book bag over her shoulder.

By the happy looks on Elizabeth Voorhees's and Amanda Jones's faces, they haven't experienced the stress of being a senior. Just wait, guys!!

"You have the right to remain silent!" says a very plump Mike Douglas. He played the role of a policeman as a part of an English assignment.

I especially enjoy hearing the group cry of "Whoa Calculus" before my third period class fails a calculus exam."

- Valdese Jones

Year in Perspective

A Photographic Review of the Year's Events

As with every year in this day and age, our nation and our world were overflowing with important events, and this year was no exception. It was a year of shocking occurrences nationally and internationally, such as the brutal slayings of Bosnians, the devastation brought about by the midwestern floods, the Los Angeles earthquake, and the bombing of the World Trade Center, which caused a terrorist scare among Americans as well as a crackdown on security standards.

It was also a year not to be forgotten in the sports world. Monica Seles was stabbed during a tennis match by a man with intentions of ending her career. Not long after, a similar attack victimized figure skater Nancy Kerrigan when she was clubbed in the knee by a man supposedly hired by the ex-husband of her skating rival. These attacks gave new meaning to the word "competition." And finally, to the disappointment of the sports world, Michael Jordan announced his retirement from the NBA. Our society and world is ever changing!

Photos: Newsweek

NASA succeeded in repairing the multi-million dollar Hubble telescope, which will provide us with pictures of outer space.

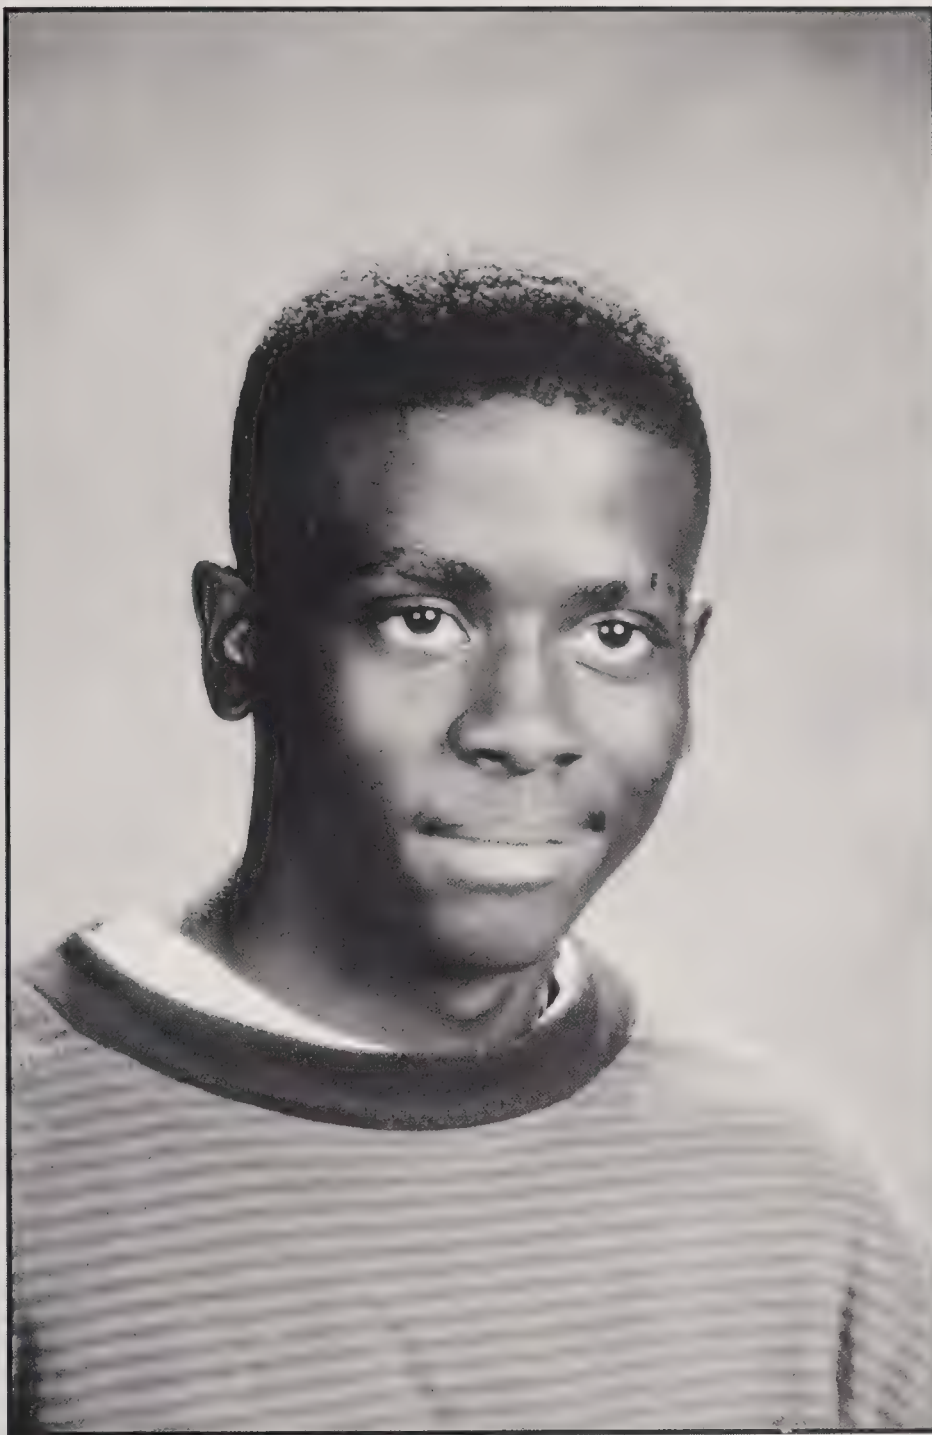

Hillary and Bill Clinton have changed politics as we know them. They have once again proven that "teamwork is best."

Jurassic Park was the biggest box office hit in 1993. Park paraphernalia was everywhere.

During a press conference, Nancy Kerrigan explains how she felt about trying to become a member of the United States Olympic Team. Her chance to earn her position on the team was almost shattered when she was brutally attacked.

In Memoriam

Tony Eli Gray, Jr.
1977-1993

Mr. Charles Byrd

He came to Hendersonville in 1965. He taught; he coached; he was a principal, assistant principal, and community-schools coordinator. Nine years ago he became our superintendent. He was North Carolina's Superintendent of the Year for 1993. In all of these positions he truly earned the honor - EDUCATOR. He really worked for the educational betterment of not only the students but also the professional staff.

We were most aware of his desire to afford opportunities for students to develop to their fullest potentials. We respected his attitude that "the best is possible and that, through industry and hard work, the best is within reach." We admired him for his genuine, generous concern, his readiness to listen and to participate. We sincerely appreciated his leadership skills; he provided positive support and encouragement - encouragement through the most difficult situation the Hendersonville City Schools ever faced - that of merging with another system.

Mr. Byrd did his job well - very well! The Hendersonville school system had an outstanding reputation when he assumed the system's leadership role. He kept us in that highly respected position as he led us into new avenues of achievements.

With deep respect and admiration, the 1994 LAUREATE is dedicated to Mr. Charles L. Byrd - the last Superintendent of the Hendersonville City Schools. Thank you for a job well done!

Mr. Laureate

James Lovvorn

Mr. Laureate is always on the go. He excels in athletics, student council, and chorus. He has been a member of chorus and soccer all four years at HHS. His freshman year, he was a member of the basketball team and a student council member-at-large both his freshman and sophomore years. He was on the powderpuff court and became a Key Club member his tenth-grade year. His junior year, he was awarded with the Outward Bound Scholarship. The track team and wrestling team were part of his junior and senior year activities, along with the Tri-M Honors Chorus. His senior year, he was department head for the House and Grounds Committee, President of Chorus, listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students and Who's Who Among American High School Athletes, and he still had time to be captain of the soccer team and vice-president for Key Club.

James Lovvorn is recognized by the Laureate as an outstanding student and athlete. We commend him for his efforts and leadership at Hendersonville High School. Congratulations to James Lovvorn, Mr. Laureate 1994.

Miss Laureate

Sky Polega

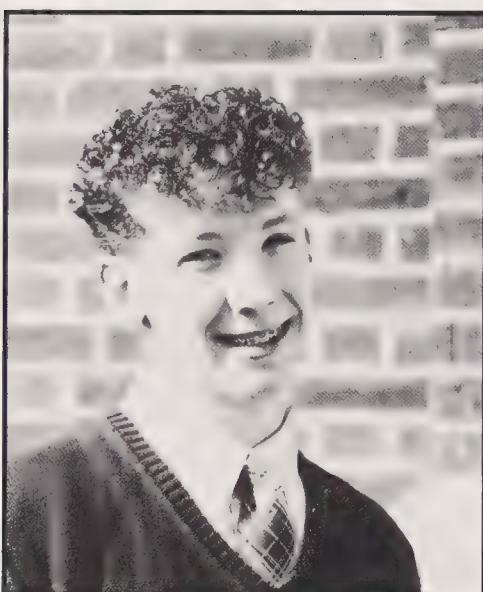

Miss Laureate is notorious for her devotion to Hendersonville High School. She has been active in Interact Club, Latin Club, French Club, Student Council, National Honor Society, Keywanettes, Inter-Club Council, and Science Club. She has served as treasurer and president of Interact Club, president of Latin Club, treasurer of French Club, department head for the International Relations Committee and co-editor of the Laureate. Outside of school, she went to Governor's School and studied Natural Science and was an exchange student in Strasbourg, France.

Sky Polega is an outstanding leader and scholar. She has maintained a 4.0 grade point average and is an NC scholar. She is planning to go to France next year and then returning to attend Duke University. She plans to join an international honors program with a concentration in civil engineering. Congratulations to Sky Polega, Miss Laureate 1994.

" 'Who's Who at HHS' is an honor bestowed upon a group of seniors who best exemplify what it means to be a Bearcat. Through the areas of Leadership, Scholarship, Arts, and Athletics - each member demonstrates the qualities necessary to succeed in today's world. The Hendersonville High School standard of excellence is built and maintained -- thanks, in great part, to these students."

SENIORS

The big day was drawing near, the close of an other year at Hendersonville High School. However, this was not like any other year, especially for this group. Most of them had been together since their freshman year, and some, many years before that. This year was the time they would say good-bye and walk through the school as a class for the last time. Through and through, they would be the ones to prove that SOME THINGS NEVER CHANGE.

"This year's senior class had the spirit and personality that made it one of the best classes in Bearcat history."

-Ryan Smith

"I believe the Class of '94 stands out in many people's minds due to the unique blend of students and the special closeness that we have shared both inside and outside of school."

-Stephanie Miller

"The Class of '94 displayed more athletic, academic, and artistic talent than any HHS class before and possibly, more than any class yet to come."

L eading the Way

This year's senior class officers went far beyond the call of duty to make this a successful year. Amy Pyles, president, speaking fondly of the Class of '94, said, "The senior class is unique when compared with previous graduating classes. Our academic excellence is unusually widespread with 47% of our class maintaining at least a 3.0 cumulative average. The extracurricular participation of most seniors makes this success in the classroom even more impressive. A bond formed in the Class of 1994 because of the merger. We felt it was important to ensure the traditions of HHS for ourselves and for those who would follow us. Our 'Pursuit of Excellence' is nearing an end, but we will leave Hendersonville High much as we found it, only better for our having been here, as we are better for being Bearcats."

The senior class officers were prepared to fight for senior privileges, no matter what it took. Jon Lamphier, secretary; Amy Pyles, president; Venus Miller, treasurer; Dawn Brown, vice-president.

rademark of superiority

Throughout the years there was a Trademark of Superiority that the seniors had always been proud to uphold. This year the Medieval Banquet was added to activities such as off-campus lunch, freshmen initiation, senior picnic, play, and the painting of the senior steps. Seniors were busy keeping up with the plans and schedule of the year. With the merger, students feared off-campus lunch was a disappearing privilege, but like many other senior activities, it proved the theory that "Some Things Never Change." The Trademark of Superiority is a tradition that will be passed down from year to year.

At the Senior Picnic, Mary Pelz, Valdesse Jones, and Heather Medd vigorously row away from what they think is a shark. Or was that Mr. Goebel?

Tommy Tomlo graciously accepts the high honor of being crowned king of the Medieval Banquet while his queen, Erin Flynn, looks on.

Many seniors took Senior Appreciation Day as an opportunity to dress their freshmen up. Lindsey Johnson became Jeff Williamson's victim.

After three years, Kelly Giles and Lisa Pittman finally enjoy the privilege of going off campus to Burger King for lunch on Fridays.

Enthusiasm has always played a major role in the Class of 1994. These seniors were eager to show their class's spirit and prove who was number one.

After spending time and hard work on designing a costume, the seniors were proud to show themselves off at the Medieval Banquet.

As a rule, freshmen have always been taught to look up to the seniors. On Senior Appreciation Day, Jason Baldwin, Lucas Nilo, and Katherine Pryor lead the freshmen in a song in honor of the Class of '94.

It's not often seniors find time to relax and enjoy each other's company. These seniors spread out on the grass to eat during the Senior Picnic.

"It's not a question of our being better than anyone else because that's a given. It is, however, a question of the underclassmen's adoration and emulation of ourselves."

-Dawn Brown

H ow much?

As fall rolled around, the Class of '94 quickly realized that their senior year wasn't going to be cheap. In addition to the ordinary expenses of a high school student - lunch, sporting events, club dues - seniors found themselves reaching into wallets for senior portraits, graduation invitations, caps and gowns, and off-campus lunch.

Even though the year sometimes seemed to drain everyone financially, most seniors agreed that the benefits and privileges more than made up for the added expense.

Seniors quickly found that test taking was quite expensive. Ulanda Waddell still manages a smile as she pays for her SAT.

In a mad rush to grab a bite to eat on Friday, Jon Lamphier pays for his lunch. Fast food was a popular choice for those a little low on cash.

Could you ask for a better looking group of people? Togetherness has always played an important role in the successes of the senior class.

he Ties That Bind

As the school year began and seniors entered a non-stop routine of filling out college applications, completing long assignments, and making time for other activities, it was obvious that the Class of '94 would bond like never before. Any rare free time was spent with friends at parties, athletic events, and socializing on Oakland St. . Early fall events such as the senior picnic, Medieval Banquet, and Homecoming brought the seniors together. Friendships grew and people began to interact with classmates that they may not have known before. It was quite clear that the Class of '94 would become closer than ever.

Due to sometimes stressful schedules, it was not uncommon to see a smile or two during lunch. These girls seem to enjoy themselves as they eat.

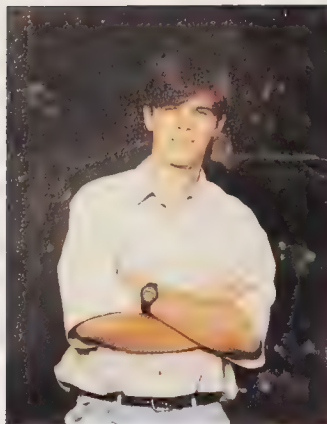

This second floor bench has always been a popular morning hangout for the Class of '94. Friends catch up on gossip, homework, and even breakfast.

After completing another stressful day in the life of a senior, Erin Flynn and Amy Wilson breathe a sigh of relief on the sundial after school.

Senior friends Pat Eaton, Tyler Jackson, Lee Cox, and Mike Douglas show off their version of the four food groups: apples, milk, root beer, and fries.

Off Time

With all the hassles of a busy week at school, most seniors anxiously looked forward to the weekend. Weekends meant time to be with friends, time to have fun, and time to catch up with life in general. It was a haven from the work of the week and a chance to escape from the pressures of school. Seniors found many different ways to pass their time from Friday afternoon until Monday morning, whether going to sporting events, hanging out with friends, or just spending some time resting. Regardless of how, seniors made sure to live every weekend to its fullest.

Weekends sometimes find seniors hard at work. Alex Atkins listens to the customer as he prepares a drink. Like many other seniors, Alex finds working at a fast-food restaurant an easy source of income.

Water sports are always a favorite among seniors. Tanya King takes time to relax from the pressures of school as she drifts along on her innertube.

Remember when each classroom had its own bathroom and water fountain, when recess, nap time and swish and spit were part of the daily routine?

Remember the tree house in the library and all of the rehearsals for the spring musicals? ("Stray Cat Strut")? Remember Colonial Day and the corn-shucking contest? Remember when changing classes for reading and math and having to sit with homerooms for lunch were a big deal? Remember being tormented by the seniors, having to pass health and swimming for freshman physical education? Flashbacks fill the hearts of seniors while thoughts of graduation fill their minds.

Participating in Girls Scouts gave these young girls a chance to learn about helping others. Many of these seniors still remember those days.

After studying about the Civil War, Colonial Day was the reward. These guys finally got a chance to show their sewing abilities by making costumes.

Marching band gave freshmen a chance to participate in the Friday night festivities. Ryan Smith marched for the fans' half-time enjoyment.

The last day of these seniors' seventh grade year was a great accomplishment. "If only they had known then what they know now."

At a friend's birthday party Amy Pyles and Sky Polega enjoyed playing with their friend's gifts. Too bad birthday parties are not what they used to be

See any familiar faces? Eight years earlier, Mrs. Hudson's fourth-grade class had only dreamed of the day when they would be seniors

As seniors, these students have made their dreams realities. Now they have only fond memories of Mrs. Hudson and their class.

Eighth grade graduation was a big step for seniors. These friends got together to enjoy this moment, while proud parents watched.

"My freshman year I was nervous about the challenges I was going to face. I thought that I would never be able to adjust; but, boy, was I surprised.

-Justin Harris

I t's about time

"Enjoy your high school years; they will be gone before you know it." Well, it's about time. After many years of education, the Class of 1994 finally arrived. As freshmen, seniors were thought of as supreme beings; as sophomores, they weren't all that supreme; and finally, as juniors, everybody knew that the best year was yet to come. After three years of hard work and determination, senior privileges were well deserved. As far as the Class of 1994 was concerned, it was well worth the years of dedication to the school.

Underclassmen

When the underclassmen entered the halls, they were handed down the responsibility of helping to preserve their school's tradition after the merger. New faces were seen in the halls and new regulations were always being made, but everyone took them in stride and remained a close knit group. Several things did not change--freshmen initiation, sneaking off campus at lunch, and the Bearcat spirit seen throughout the halls. This group of people would not let HHS down. They proved that SOME THINGS NEVER CHANGE!

"I think, overall, that the students are working harder to improve this school's capabilities of encouraging what we can do as individuals since merger."

-Eva Hunt

"I think that being a sophomore isn't as special as being a freshman: We are no longer new. Also, we have not reached the status of being seniors; we aren't about to leave."

-Jeb VanDerVeen

"Considering that the Junior class realizes that our final year of high school is just around the corner, we're trying to make the most of what little time we have left at HHS."

Three down . . . one to go!

Juniors entered HHS once again knowing that they were almost there. They had survived the tasks of being freshmen and sophomores. However, their hardest task was yet to be accomplished.

College was just around the corner, and juniors had to face the wonderful music of making the grades that colleges were looking for, not to mention the dreaded PSAT and SAT. How could they handle it all? Eric Clayton answered this question: "By having confidence in myself and knowing that if I do the best I can, everything will work out fine."

There was an "up" side to being a Junior, though. They were looked up to (kind of) and acknowledged as "upperclassmen," and they were aware that this year was the long-awaited Prom.

Something else that brought uncertainty to Juniors' minds was the near future—that final year of their high school career. It was approaching fast...almost too fast.

Lunch was always the perfect time to be with friends. Eric Clayton, Nat Lancaster, Olivia Chu, and Erin Gilson make conversation in the sun.

Lunch is a time for these two to broaden their friendship. Danielle Mir and Misty Thomas share thoughts as they eat.

Students often took the time to relax in the leaves. Kari Sevier and Robyn Brookshire enjoy spending time together.

sophomores

A Different Perspective

With their first year at Hendersonville High School behind them, sophomores gained a different perspective of student life. They no longer had to fear being tormented by the seniors, nor did they have to wander around the campus, desperately trying to find their next class, a class which a senior had informed them was on the fourth floor. They knew the people, as well as the surroundings, yet they were faced with new challenges and expectations such as geometry, the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT), and the anxiety of getting drivers' licenses.

As the end of this year rapidly approached, sophomores realized that they were halfway there. Phillip Brugger summed up being a sophomore when he said, "This year has been full of different responsibilities, but I have been able to overcome these challenges."

Bambi Thompson and Grace Wright take a moment out of class to share their sophomore spirit.

With their notebooks out and ready to take notes, Stella Barnett and Dottie Etherton are always prepared.

A Change of Scenery

As the freshman walked into HHS that first day, a long journey lay ahead of them—one with twists and turns, ups and downs. Their journey began with discovery: discovering a new and different setting, atmosphere, and way of life. Lindsey Johnson explained that "Being new at HHS is better than Junior High because there are more people to be around and more activities to participate in." Their journey also began a little roughly. Seniors were waiting for them, as was that fateful day—Senior Appreciation Day. Looking back to that day, Mike Henderson remembered "I had to dress up as a Boy Scout and carry a backpack with weights in it. It was kind of fun." Somehow, though, they made it through.

As the first year of their four year journey came to a close, freshmen looked ahead to their final three years and wondered, 'Will we ever get there?' Surprisingly, the end of the road would be here before they knew it.

Life Skills

Two in One

This year was the first year that there were two Life Skills classes. With the addition of Ms. Martin, Mrs. Hollaman, and Mrs. Whitmire, the large class of the previous year was divided into two. This gave each group a chance to do more exciting things such as building birdhouses, making angels, silk-screen printing, swimming, and gym classes. "I really liked grounds keeping because it made the school beautiful," said Greg Blake. These smaller classes also gave them a chance to get to know one another better. Friendships were quickly and abundantly created in the Life Skills class, and learning was a pleasant experience with the lasting relationships that were built in the classroom. The students at Hendersonville High School seemed to enjoy the chance to socialize in the halls with each other. Everyone was always met with a cheerful smile and a warm hello. HHS students and faculty appreciated the hard work, pride, and determination put in to make the school a unique place.

Watch out, Michael Nicholson! Dee Galloway might be looking at your cards.

A warm smile is always found on the face of Fran Shipman. She and Greg Blake share a moment of conversation.

Academics Organizations

The school year began as it had for the past sixty-seven years. This year though, the Bearcats experienced their first opening as a county school. Despite this new experience the spirit and pride in HHS were as strong as ever. Participation in clubs perpetuated these feelings and created a sense of true school ties. Bonds that were formed through the various clubs were ones that would remain strong as the year progressed. The beginning of this bonding was the clubs' assembly. Throughout the school, club activity was evident. Posters advertising dinners, concerts, sales, and many other events were plastered on every wall and door. The Student Council theme of Bearcat Renaissance gave every student at HHS a chance to remember the past, live for the present, and strive for the future.

"Being a part of volunteer clubs gives a chance to help the community. I find it easier to serve the community with a group of people rather than doing it on my own. Helping the community gives me a good feeling. I'm glad HHS has clubs that can help one to do this."

-Jill Shipman

"Since I am a junior and my senior year is next year, I am every excited about college. I feel well prepared to enter college with the education I have received from HHS."

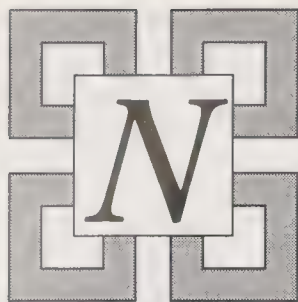

-Emily Sherrill

"The clubs here at HHS are a great way to better the school, to help and to get to know people in the community."

-Taz Painter

ew Faces: Same Standard of Excellence

Dr. VI demonstrates his scientific talent by cooking hamburgers at the senior picnic. Well done?

With the merger of the former city and county school systems, new faces around the HHS campus were not out of the ordinary. This change applied to the HHS faculty as well. With retirement and transferral of several faculty members, the 1993-1994 school year began with an abundance of fresh, new faces. All of them, of course, were welcomed with open arms, and it was not long before they had adjusted to life at HHS. Newcomer Sandy Forman commented on his impression of student-faculty relations by saying, "I don't believe that in my vast teaching experiences here in Henderson County, I have ever encountered such reciprocal respect and caring between two such normally opposing forces."

Although the people behind the desks were different, the standard of excellence in education remained. There was not a classroom that lacked the unique atmosphere and character created by each faculty member. Despite all of the differences that the merger developed, when it came to our faculty, the truth of the matter could be simply stated, of course, with the phrase, "Some things never change."

Hall of Fame

The Hall of Fame is a distinct honor obtained by a student for his or her great accomplishments in each field of study. Each department chooses students who have shown a great interest in learning and succeeding in their quest for knowledge. The students on these pages show extraordinary enthusiasm toward their studies and are well-deserving of this recognition.

Head of the Class

Every Tuesday morning Student Council members marched up to Miss Youngblood's room to prepare the social calendar for the school. "I like to help plan and organize the events at our school. We have a great time!" exclaimed Dawn Brown. Not only did the Student Council help to run the school, but it also provided several personal gifts to its members. A few of the members explained:

"So far it has been fun. I'm looking forward to planning more activities!" -Beth Pyles

"My involvement in Student Council has helped me get more involved in our school by allowing me to participate in the many projects that it does." -Lee Cox

"Although being president of the Student Council holds a lot of responsibility and hard work, it gives me the opportunity to make valuable friendships and wonderful memories." -Mike Douglas

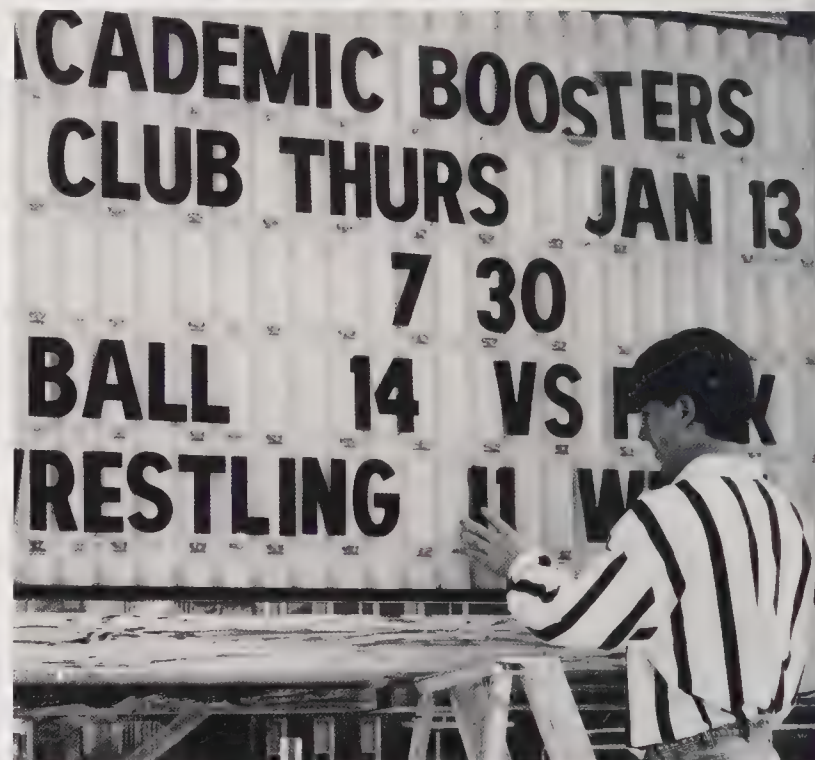

The Student Council provided so many exciting activities for the school and so much enjoyment for its members that it was definitely one of the most popular and rewarding clubs of the school. Iris McGinnis apparently felt the same when she said, "Student Council is great! I'd give my right hand to be a part of it."

ervice to the World

The members of the National Honor Society are inducted on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. This year thirty new members were inducted to bring the total membership to sixty-three. These students spent their time doing service projects, such as tutoring students, working at the Pancake Breakfast and the Chicken Dinner, and serving as junior marshals for graduation. The World History Club studies various cultures by watching films on different countries and eating at restaurants that correspond to them. Patrick Eaton, president of the World History Club, said, "The club tries to involve everyone and wants people to know about various world cultures. We also want to have as much fun as we can so that learning will take place outside as well as inside the classroom."

Foreign Affairs

Members of the foreign language clubs explored the cultures of the countries which spoke the languages that they studied. Students found it more fun to learn about the culture through experiencing it rather than just learning book knowledge. Members of all the clubs-French, Spanish, and Latin- enjoyed getting together for volleyball games, movies, and, of course food! Robert Todd, of the French Club, said that it "is a valuable academic club because it allows members to learn the culture of the French people through eating and watching movies." The Latin Club also branched out beyond just experiencing culture and helped out the community. Sky Polega, president, said that "this year we were able to reach out to the community as well, through providing tray favors and cards for patients at Pardee and retirees throughout the community." No matter what the clubs were involved in, their major object was fun.

French students had the pleasure of sampling some fine French cuisine from time to time. Garrett Noegel, Stephanie Piscitelli, and Katherine Pryor finish up the last of the cheesecake.

Latin Club held its traditional Saturnalia at Tanya King's home this year. Mrs. Copolillo, Shanon Maher, Sky Polega, and Tanya King relax at the end.

Express Yourself

Students entered the Fine Arts Department this year with open minds. They were eagerly greeted by new faces who would be successful in maintaining Hendersonville's flair of excellence in the arts. The drama classes, directed by Sarah Miller, received honorable mention at the one act play competition in Mars Hill. The chorus continued to be one of the best in the state, and the dance class soared to new heights. The students at HHS were never disappointed and always welcomed a fine arts assembly with open minds. The fine arts students, themselves, always enjoyed performing.

To err is human and it happens to the best of us. Manuel Creech quickly glances at Bobby Christian, wondering if he really meant to mess up that line.

An Ever-Changing Melody

The most obvious change in Hendersonville's instrumental music department was the recently constructed bandroom, but the structure was only one of many new additions to the program. The merger introduced a strings class which gave students an opportunity to experience a new melody. "The strings program is very worthwhile, and I'm really glad to finally see it at HHS," said Jenny Reibold. Fourth period strings was not the only new class. With the loss of the marching band, the program began a new musical tradition--that of the pep band. Even with these new additions, the department maintained its high standards and commitment to excellence. On the football field, the stage, and even practicing in the bandroom, the dedication and high quality were still present, proving once again that SOME THINGS NEVER CHANGE.

Drum Major Tanya King directs the pep band. The pep band incorporated multicolored crates into their half-time show.

Reading, Writing, and Reaching Out

The Interact Club worked on many community-service projects. They raised money, baby-sat, and helped operate the thrift shop for Mainstay. Also, they sent someone to Germany for international work for one month during the summer.

The Literary Club provided an opportunity for students to share things that they had written or just to sit and listen to other students' work. It provided an environment for students to have their work appreciated.

The Red and White staff informed the students monthly as to what was happening at HHS. They wrote articles on topics relevant to high school students. The paper provided both informative and entertaining information.

Key Roles

Have you ever wondered who sells the mouth-watering pizza during basketball games or who helps keep the campus clean and neat? These projects were just a couple of the numerous responsibilities taken on by the Keywanette and Key Club members this year. Yes, they paraded around the halls in such attire as coats and ties, vests, and the ever-so-popular blue t-shirts. This dress, however, was not the extent of their duties. Keywanette members did everything from baking cakes for state-bound athletes to putting on various fundraisers for worthy charities to decorating the school for Christmas. In addition, this year Keywanettes was chosen as the district club for both North and South Carolina and took on the tremendous responsibility of hosting the Carolinas' District Keywanette Conventioun in April. This activity meant raising thousands of dollars for the event. The Key Club was challenged with keeping the grounds of HHS manicured, mowing grass and trimming shrubs. They, too, raised money for organizations such as Mainstay and helped out with concessions. With a new sponsor, Mr. Taylor, they had a very productive year. It was definetly a busy year for both clubs.

Uniting for a Cause

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes provided a chance for students to share their religious beliefs and ideas with others while supporting the sports teams. This year a prayer team was introduced. Throughout the year, the team prayed for each individual in the student body. The FCA also participated in "See You at the Pole," an international program throughout the high school campuses. They gathered around the flag pole and prayed for their school and nation.

The African-American Club worked to provide unity throughout the student body. Through sponsoring a soc-hop and the sale of candy canes, they raised money for scholarships. They also were in charge of the recycling program throughout the school. This activity provided an opportunity for the school to participate in the awareness of recycling and its benefits.

The Outing Club did a little bit of everything. They went hiking, skiing, rafting, and camping. The members planned on doing things such as rock climbing and horse-back riding before the year was over. Club president Trey Nicholson said, "The Outing Club does anything and everything outdoors. If it's indoors, we don't like it."

The Ski Club went skiing on Wednesdays for about eight weeks during the winter. They raced against area high schools and also against schools from as far away as Georgia. Five out of the past six years, the Ski Club has won the Southeast Regional High School Ski Championship and hoped for the same out of this season. Not all members of the Ski Club competed, but those that did kept up the winning tradition of the Bearcats.

SPORTS

From the football, baseball, and soccer fields to the basketball, volleyball, and tennis courts, HHS students proved once again that no matter what the challenge, they were going to face it as a team. It was a new year, with new people and new coaches, but the same old tradition of Bearcat excellence. This tradition extended into every aspect of Bearcat sports and was proven beyond a doubt when HHS was presented with its seventh Wachovia Cup in the past eight years. In the end, the outcome of the game did not matter, for both on and off the field, HHS students learned to work as a team, and this teamwork made all of us winners.

"Sports at HHS are very high in quality, but they would not be that way if we did not have as many great athletes and as strong a school spirit as we do."

- Jason Baldwin

"All of the athletic teams here at HHS have always been excellent. This year things have not changed. We have pursuit of excellence in not only academics but athletics as well."

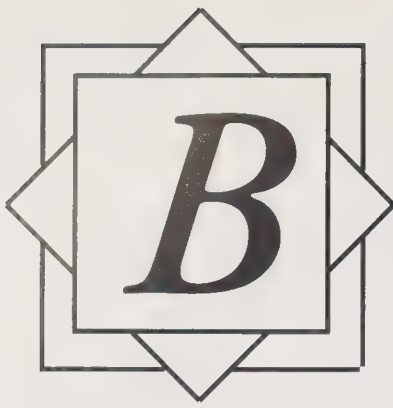

- Stephanie Piscitelli

"Sports in general at HHS is probably the best in Henderson County. In fact, we have the best coaching staff and some of the best athletes in western North Carolina."

- Alfonzo Smith

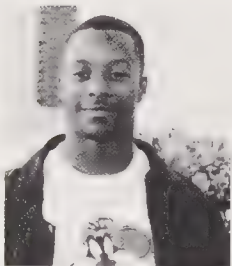

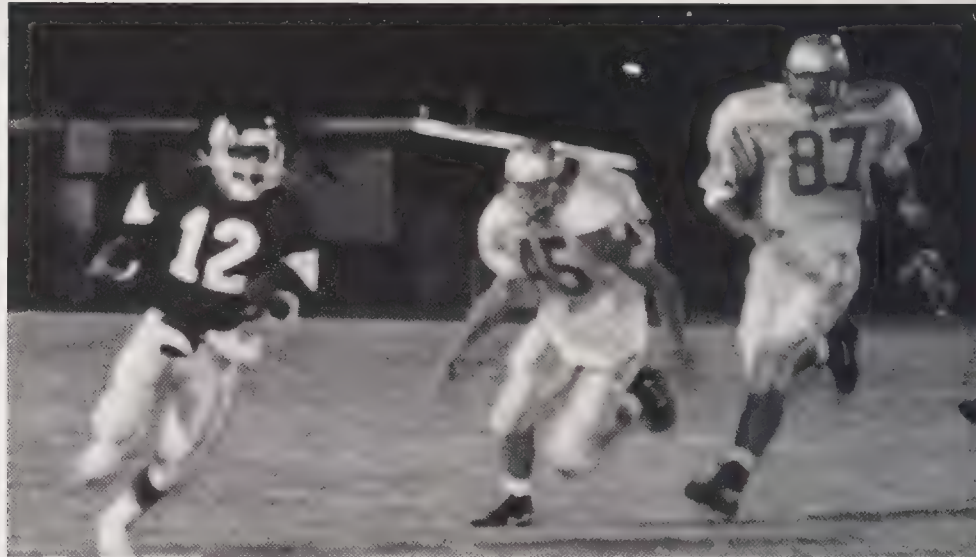

earcats blend new challenges with a winning tradition

New coach, new conference, new classification, same result — a winning Bearcat team! Coach Snyder's redesigned offense and Coach Stanley's stingy defense brought victories against Murphy, Brevard, Rosman, and Smokey Mt. in four of the first five games. Excitement was back in Bearcat football!

Homecoming brought the Polk Co. Wolverines up the mountain with both teams opening the new Apple Country Conference with 4-1 records. After a sluggish first half, the Cats scored 21 unanswered points to down the visitors 28-21 and send the large crowd home happy. The Chase Trojans were next to fall, 13-3. Finally came the three games every Henderson County resident had been waiting for — West, East, and North. The Cats spoiled the Falcon's Homecoming with a gritty 20-7 victory. Both East and HHS were 3-0 in conference play when they met the following week. In the rain, the Bearcat defense prevailed to hold on to a 13-7 win. The regular season wrapped up with a 33-20 win over North. Coach Snyder had led the Cats to a 9-1 record and the ACC Championship.

Holding Their Own

New conference, new teams, and new division meant tougher competition. The Lady Bearcat volleyball team held their own against the other teams. Completing their season at 12 and 6 and 6 and 4 in conference, they finished third in conference play. Jennifer Gilbert summed up the season by saying, "Because of coming back with two state championships, I felt like the team had a lot of pressure put on us for one more. Tennis and Cross Country achieve success

This year's girls tennis and cross country teams were successful once again. Girls tennis finished the season at 5 and 1 in the conference and 8 and 5 overall. Natalie Rhodes said, "We had a lot of good players this year, and we will miss them next year. We will need to work hard next season, but I'm looking forward to it."

Cross Country ran strong this year, ending fourth in the conference. Meagan Honnald summed up the season by saying, "Cross Country was a good experience for me. It took a lot of discipline and hard work; but, despite the agony, I think our team had a fun season together."

oop" There it is! A quest for the title

With the memories of the 1992 state championship resting in the minds of four senior players, Hendersonville High School Basketball strived to uphold the infamous winning tradition. This year with a new coach, a new conference, and a new classification, players worked very hard to continue such excellence. Quincy "Power Dunk" Foster paced the offense, averaging near 20 points a game, with Garrett Noegel, the three point threat, just behind at 17. Darrell Braswell "ran the show" from the point guard spot, while Justin Pride, the only junior starter, contributed a high level of defensive intensity. "The Rejector" Scott Gash ruled "the paint" with his powerful rebounds and massive blocks. Coming off the bench were seniors Damien Brockmann, Alfonzo Smith and Dwayne McMillian. Junior Adam Robinson and Sophomore Jeff Walker gave valuable minutes towards the total winning picture. This team truly showed everyone that they were the best.

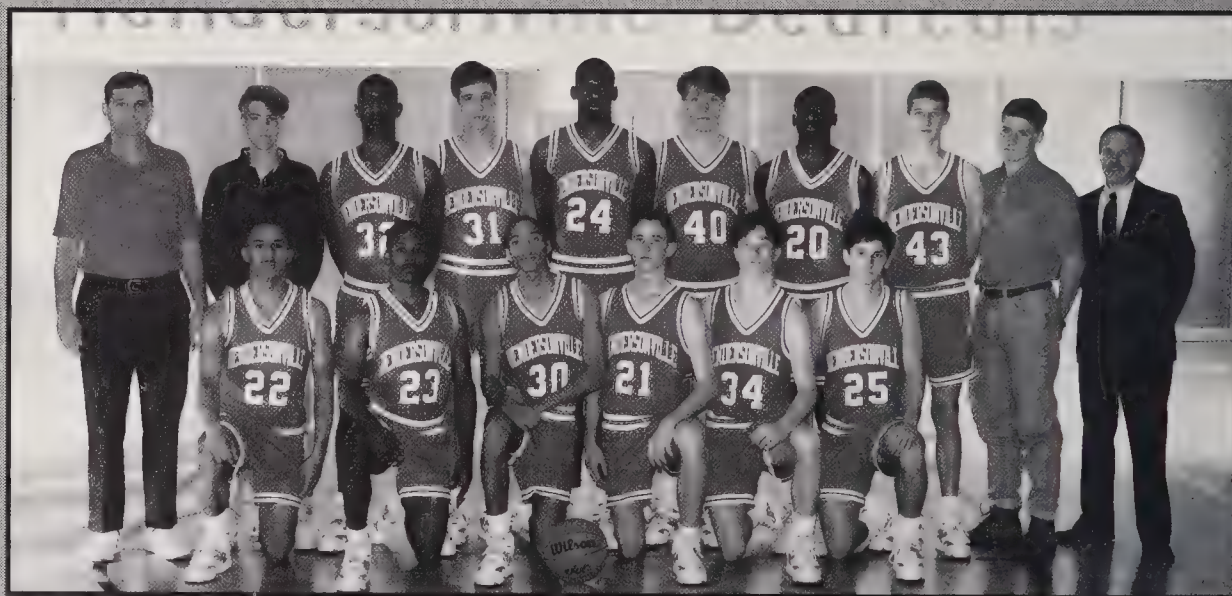

To any basketball team, passing the ball is very important while being closely defended. Garrett Noegel peers at his teammates looking for the open man.

hooting for the Stars

Lady Bearcats Aim Towards Victory

It was a new season where the sky was the limit. A year of hard work, dedication, and rewards. The Lady Bearcats were aiming high—they were aiming for the stars, and they would accept nothing less than the best. The year fulfilled these expectations.

Many of the same faces returned to the court this season for exercise, fun, and just an all-out-good game of basketball. Their expectations were high, but even higher were their spirit and their support for their team. Bearcat pride and dedication filled the gym not only during games but also in the long hours of practice. Overall, the season was a success and the Lady Bearcats obtained their goal of "shooting for the stars."

The Lady Bearcats listen intently during a time-out as Coach Norman explains the next play.

Practice makes perfect. Before the game the team takes to the court for some last minute preparation.

Spirit on the Rise

Cheerleaders Worked Hard to Lift Spirits

The purpose of a cheerleader is to get the crowd to respond to the games. With signs, pom-poms, and megaphones on hand, they stand in the cold, rainy night or sit in a loud, crowded gymnasium.

Many people think of cheerleading as an organization rather than a sport. Cheerleaders practice for a month before their sport starts, though. Each cheerleader must memorize at least twenty-three cheers and over sixty chants.

Before a football game, Kristen Terebelski stretches out. Kristen has shown her spirit on the football squad for the past three years.

The basketball cheerleaders strive to chant the Bearcats on to another victory. Being a cheerleader takes a lot of hard work and dedication.

"Cheerleading was very fun and exciting this year. We were all very close and worked well as a team. We had a lot of fun in every thing we did. We had a great football season and that kept our Bearcat spirit going strong as a squad. I really enjoyed being captain this year. GO BIG RED!"

Basketball season was long and eventful. The basketball cheerleaders kept their spirit high throughout each game.

This year was Sharman Norman's last year as sponsor of the cheerleaders. Mrs. Norman did an outstanding job and all of her work was deeply appreciated.

restling and Swimming

Shaving for a Victory

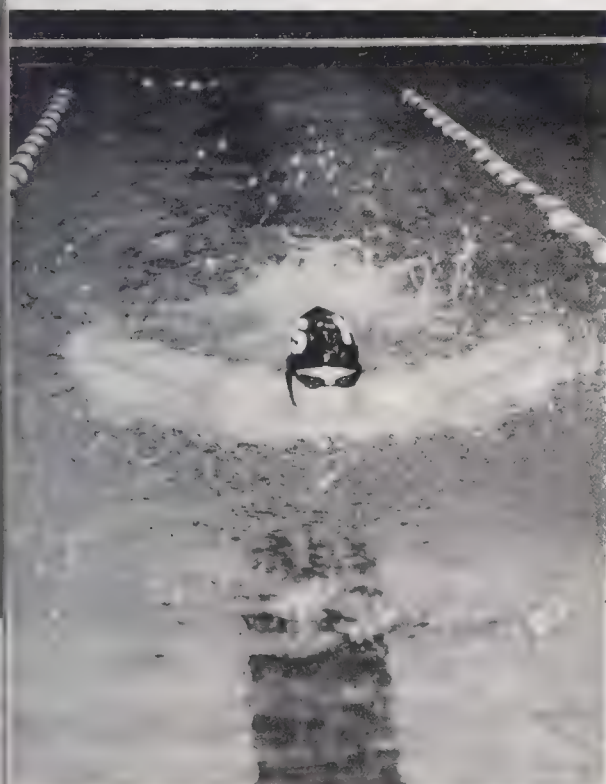

This year's wrestlers decided to shave their heads. By shaving off their locks, they could lose weight and prevent sore scalps. While wrestling, it is easy to weaken an opponent by pulling his hair. The HHS wrestlers defended themselves by shaving their heads. After cutting their hair, they could lose up to a pound and a half, and in wrestling, ever pound counts.

The swim team competed against area high schools. Just like track, time is very important in a swimmer's event. It has been said that by swimmers shaving their legs, they can improve their time. However, the guys did not get into the festivities as much as the girls did. Smart choice, guys!!

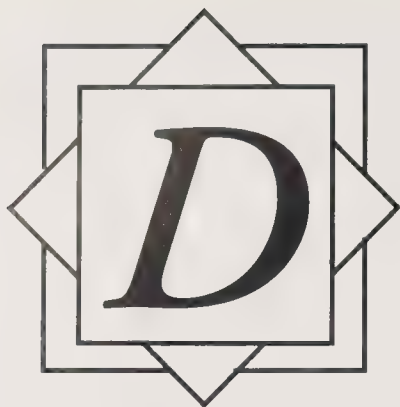

Members of the swim team anxiously await their next event. Will Sinclair looks tired and water-logged.

Getting Into the Swing of Things

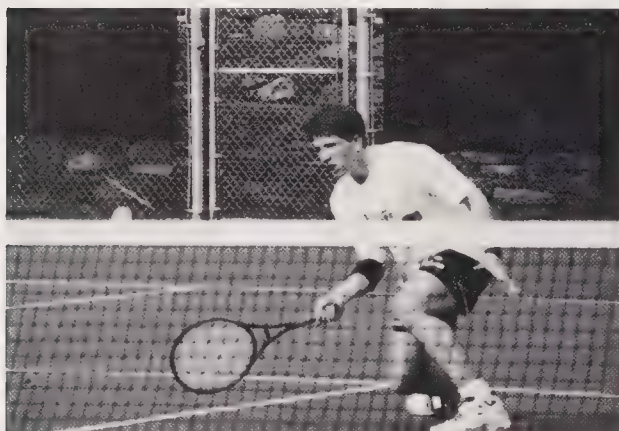

The crispness of a warm spring day makes anyone want to play an afternoon match of tennis or golf. Some students devoted many hours of their time to these sports and our school by playing on these teams. Seniors Jarrod Hayes, Keith Kessar, and Ryan Smith planned to lead the golf team to a successful year. Their followers, an array of underclassmen, included Brandon Yelverton, Jeff Walker, and newcomers Kevin King, Logan Fazio, Michael Eaton, and Dan Brostowicz.

On the tennis court, Senior and three time state qualifier, Keith Kessar, leads the way with returning state-qualifier Robert Todd at his side. Other returning lettermen were Andy Twitchen, Tucker Voorhees, Adam McGlashan, Mike Adams, and Bryce Perry. Joining the team this year and becoming major contributors were Philip Pearsall, Jordan Glassman, and Dan Brostowicz.

Both the tennis and golf teams continued to uphold the standard of athletic excellence at HHS.

With the touch of a champion, Tucker Voorhees carefully angles a delicate volley during a team workout.

Junior Adam McGlashan prepares to smash a devastating forehand past a trembling opponent.

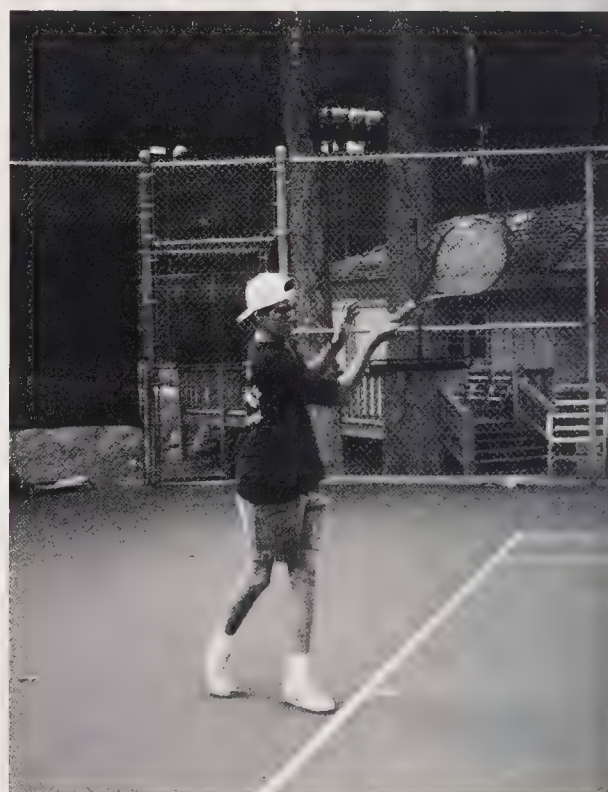

"We expect to have a better-than-average team this year. We lost only one player from last year's conference championship team. Returning players have been honing their skills during the off season and should be much improved going into a new year."

-Richard Brown

Junior, Andy Twitchen, uses his strong forehand to win the point from the baseline.

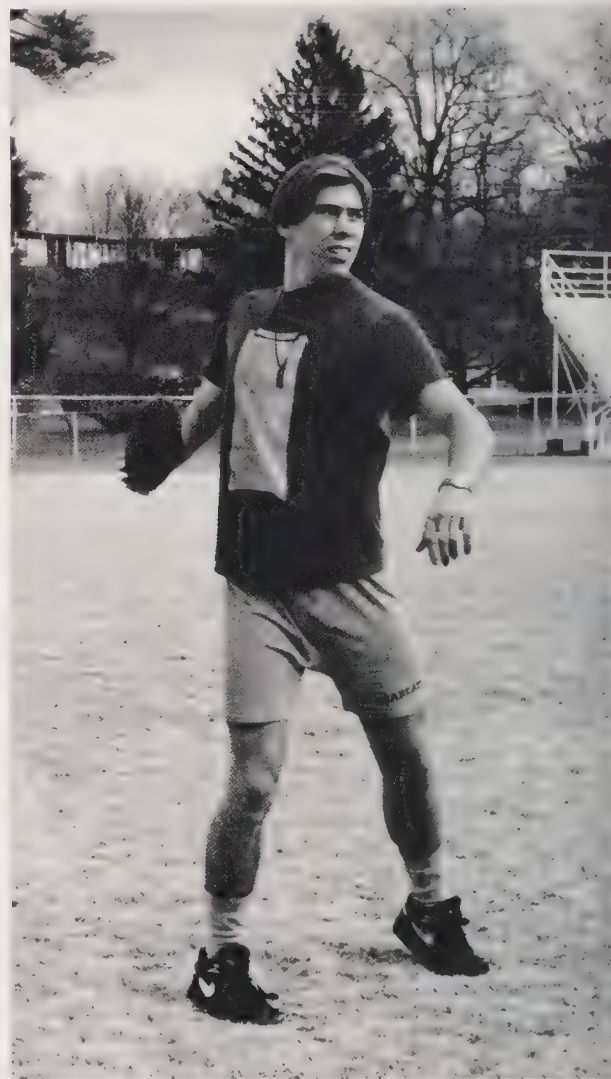

During a preseason practice, Junior, Brandon Yelverton, takes a few swings to get ready to hit the course.

Chris Wright concentrates on pole vaulting. He was a top pole vaulter for this year's team.

As a discus and shot put thrower, Preston Pierce tries to reach a long distance with this throw.

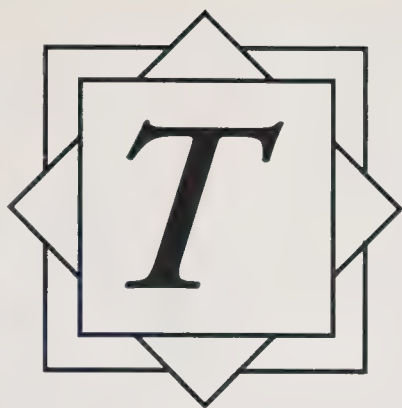

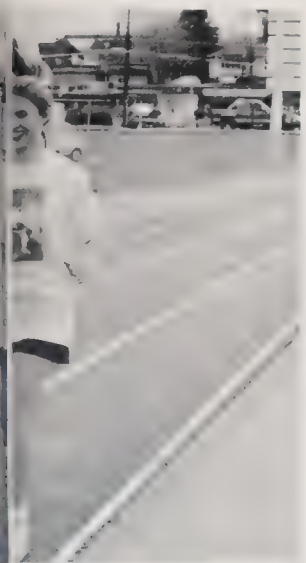

Hurdles are a hard event. These runners leap over the hurdles as they compete for first place.

"Being on the track team has been very rewarding for me the last three years. Running is a sport of solitude. Track has molded me to become a more confident person as well as an athlete."

- Torrance Gary

These runners find this warm-up hilarious. Suzanne Thorndike, Tillia Leland, and Emily Sherrill laugh about having to run so far.

Sprinting for Success

The Lady Bearcats will be looking to improve on their fifth place finish in last year's 1-A/2-A State Track Meet. Kelly Giles commented on the season by saying, "I found that track was a good way to stay in shape and exercise while competing against people. Coach Bolton made track fun and an overall worthwhile experience."

The Bearcats, led by new coach B. J. Laughter, looked to defend their Regional Championship. Matt Shipman said, "We all worked really hard! We had a lot of experience that contributed to a great season."

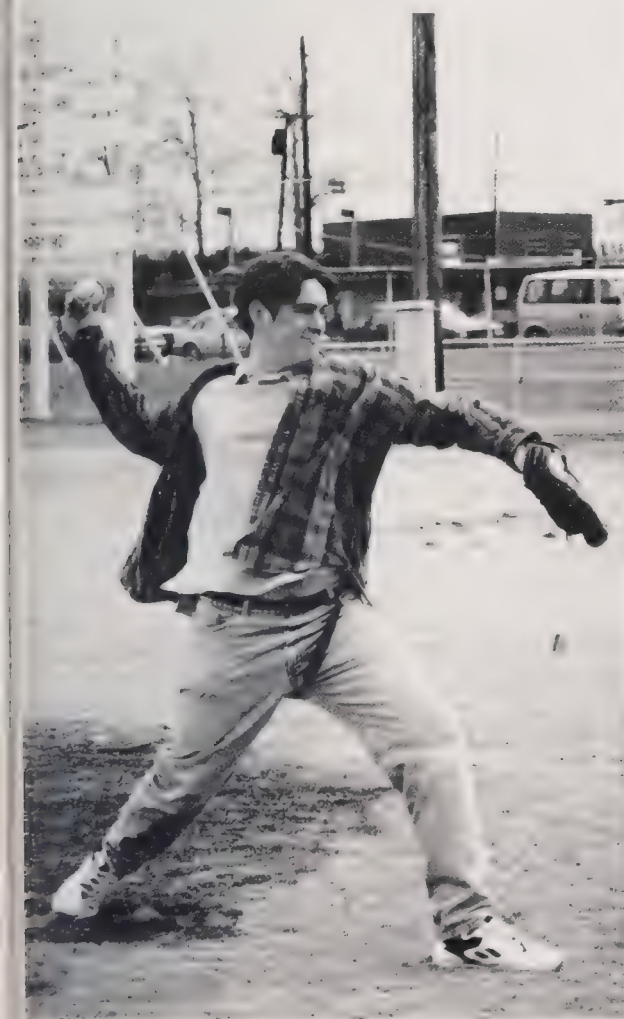

The high jump is a hard leap to make. Alfonzo Smith springs over the bar. These two runners take their warm-up seriously. Darrell Braswell and Matt Shipman take strides to finish.

"I think that the reason we bring home so many wins is that the support we give to each other on and off the track is incredible. We practice and compete hard but we never leave out the most important part--that's having fun."

- Daphne Todd

Hey batter, batter swing! Here Jason Baldwin seems prepared to hit any pitch thrown his way.

It's the wind-up...and the pitch! Justin Kruse gets ready to throw a strike.

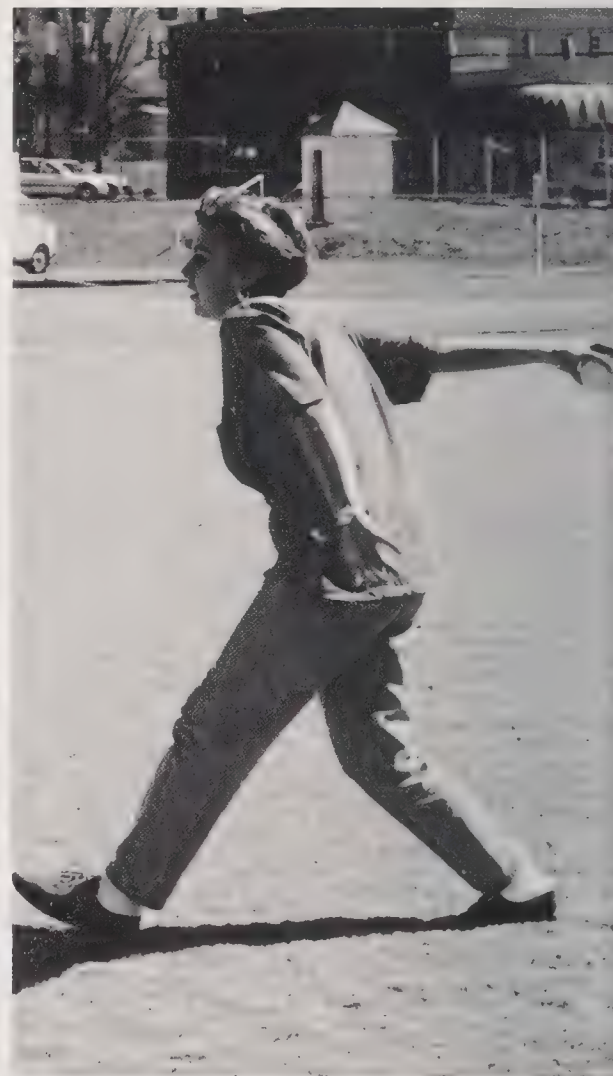

"We are lacking in pitching but extremely strong in the other aspects. We will have a solid team in '94."

Tommy Tomlo

Powerful hitter Ulanda Pryor jokes with her team about a comical incident that occurred during practice. In a display of team unity, Carl Waddell eyes the oncoming ball as she prepares to knock another one over the fence.

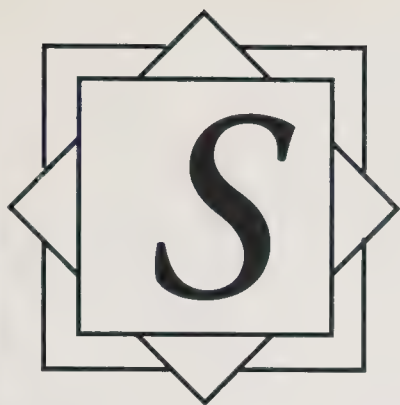

Pictor Stephanie Piscitelli focuses on the plate as she concentrates on throwing a strike to the next hitter. It's a bird! It's a plane! No, it's Jamie Lee fielding a fly ball.

"We have gained a lot of freshmen, and have a new coach, so I expect things to be shaky at first. We should pull together and have a pretty good season, though."

-Jamie Lee

During a warm-up session, Megan Kenzik and Carrie Pryor found a spot on the field to toss the ball back and forth.

Swinging Into Spring

Softball Team Aims for Success

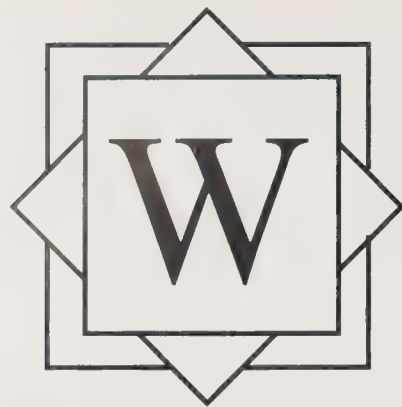

The softball team entered the spring season with a talented group of ladies ready to take on the challenge of an enthusiastic new coach. With the loss of only two seniors last year, this year's squad was composed of many experienced players primed for leadership roles. Coach Diana Hubreth commented, "I am very excited about coaching softball for HHS. I have coached at Monroe High for three years, but coaching a team I played for will be a real honor. If everyone comes out with a positive attitude, ready to have fun, we will have a very successful season."

It's a hard job, but someone's gotta do it! Rebecca Greene, Kim Williams, and Kim Orwoll happily await their turn while they sit on the bench.

Catcher Carrie Volk kneels and awaits the ball during a practice session.

What's up, Doc?

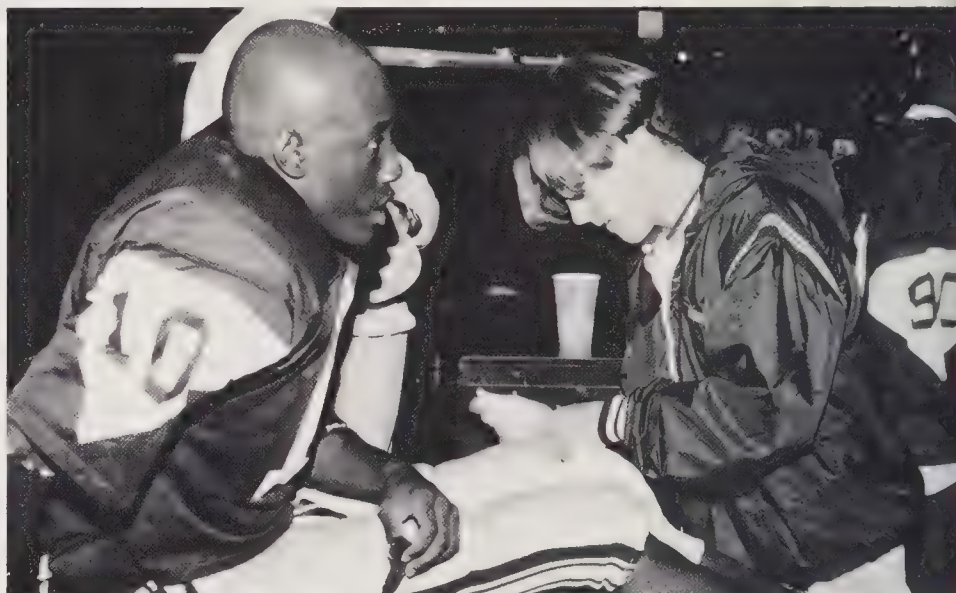

The healing touch

Behind the scenes of every athletic team at HHS was a Student Athletic Trainer ready to prevent and treat any sports related injury. These dedicated students devoted a significant amount of their time to the school, spending long hours studying the anatomy and physiology of the human body. With this knowledge, each trainer treated and rehabilitated athletes with various injuries. Student trainers were responsible for being at every practice and game with the needed medical supplies, as well as plenty of liquid nourishment. Along with the guidance of "Doc" Durham and the experience of the senior trainers, the Sports Medicine Department strived for excellence.

Electronic muscle stimulation is a way student trainers treat acute pain. Kim Orwoll and Grace Wright set up the machine for Joseph Snipe's knee.

Trainers are responsible for treating players quickly, so they can return to the field of competition. Robert Todd prepares a cold compression wrap on Quincy Foster.

"The Sports Medicine Department at HHS is one of the best in the state. The excellent student trainers work very hard to keep this department so successful."

Prevention of further injury consumes much of an athletic trainer's time. Ryan Smith uses his taping skills on an injured ankle before a basketball game.

10-K thirst quinner helped to sponsor the athletic program at HHS. Before football practice, Amy Flanagan prepares a cooler of water for the team.

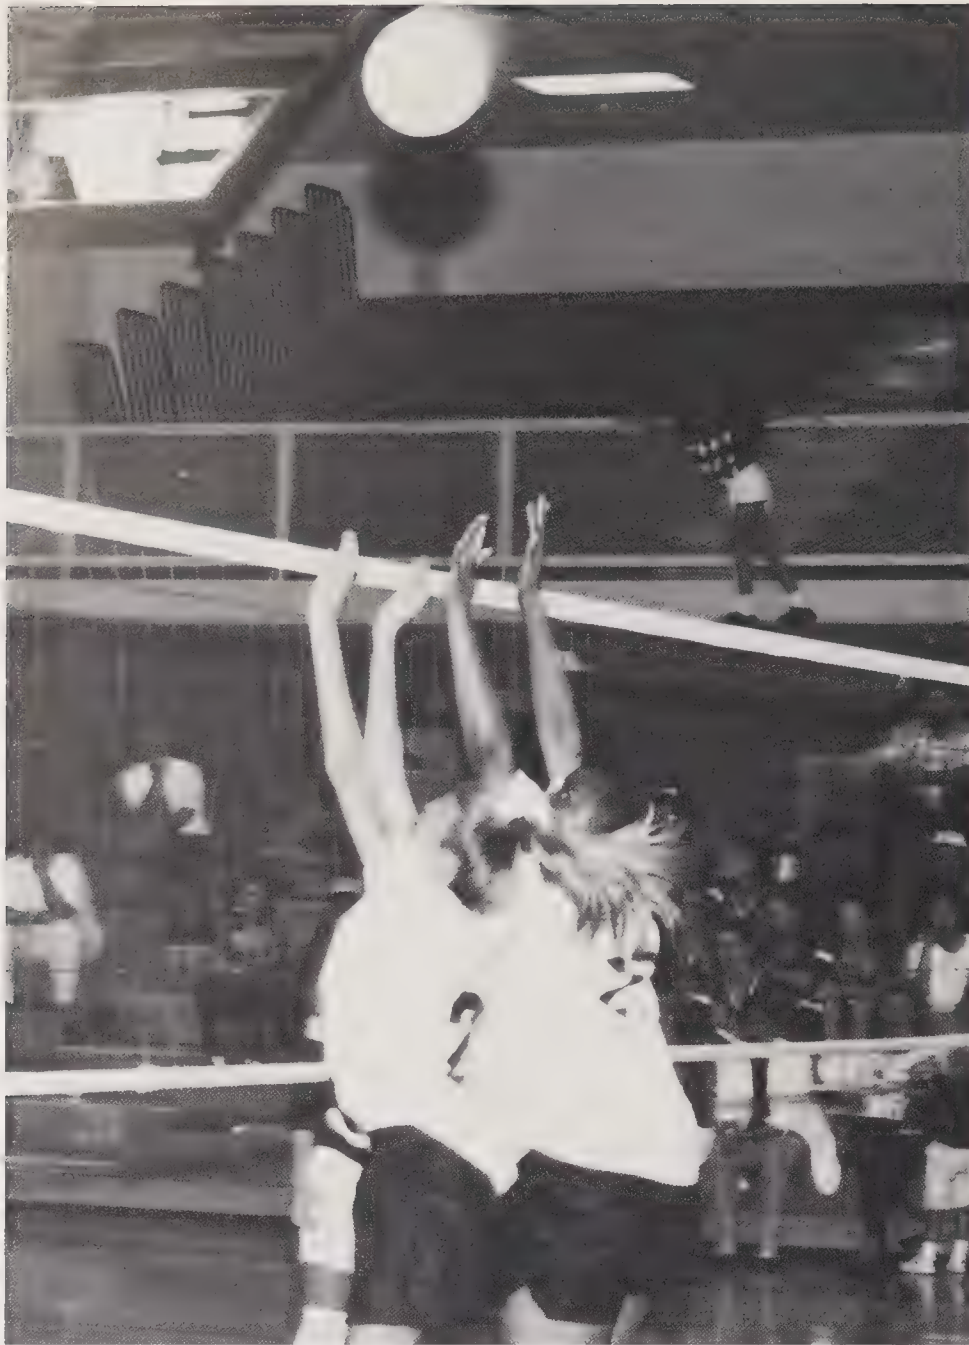

Student trainers rehabilitate all parts of the body using a variety of rehab programs. During a seventh-period session, Robert Owens exercises his knee on the N-K table.

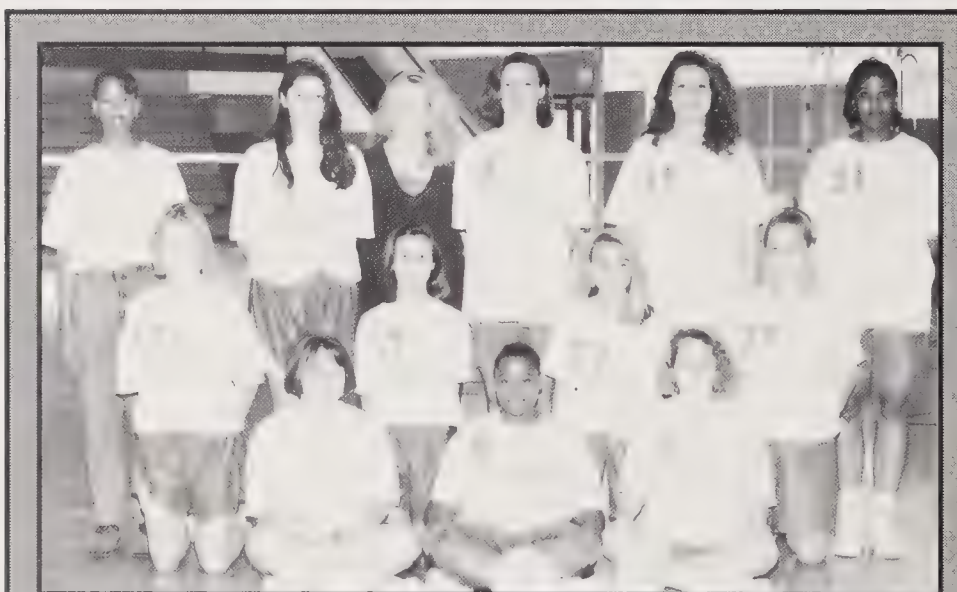

"Being a student trainer is a great way to get involved in athletics at HHS. Although it takes up a lot of time, the memories and friendships that one makes are fantastic."

-Robert Todd

itting it Hard

J.V. teams strive for victory

From the gym to the field, HHS junior varsity sports dominate. This year's JV volleyball team had a new coach and new success. Sophomore member Natalie Collins said, "Even though we started out a little slow, things came together and we became a team."

The JV baseball team was equally successful. They had a tough season, but they managed to pull through with flying colors. Phil Hensley said, "Baseball was fun this year and a new experience. Playing this year has given me the skills I need for the future."

The JV cheerleaders have been spirited throughout the year. Elizabeth Davis said, "Although we are a first year squad, we are spirited and enthusiastic. I feel honored to be a part of a new tradition starting at HHS."

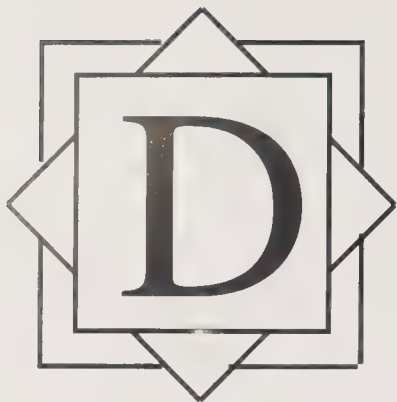

Baseball season started as Phil Hensley and Blair Craven practiced with their friends.

The JV cheerleaders display their spirit by performing a cheer. They are proud to be Bearcats!

ribbling to the Top aiming to win

Even with the addition of a junior varsity girls basketball team, our standard was still excellence. The girls came out as a new team, but they proved to be tough competition. Shelley Shipman commented on the season by saying, "Even though we were not number one, we worked hard together and we had a lot of fun."

The junior varsity boys had a tough season in a new division. They held their own and also proved to be tough competition. Noah Brown summed up the season by saying, "We started out slow but we improved every game and had a good season."

A fast break is attempted this time down the floor. Beth Pyles looks for an open lane.

Noah Brown drives hard to the basket and looks to pass to an open teammate.

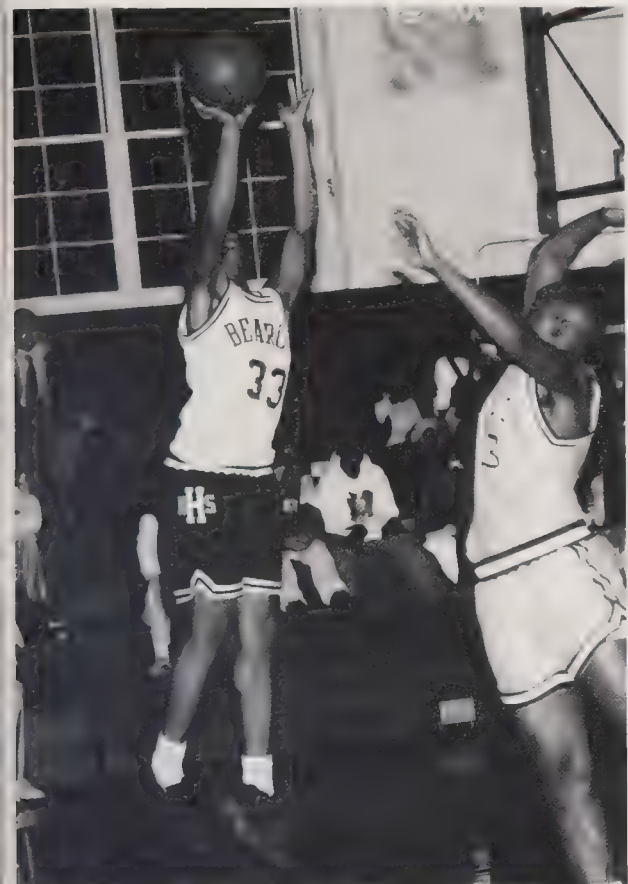

"I have really enjoyed this year and the team has really come together. We've caught a few bad breaks, but I can honestly say we are a 'team' now!"

- Robert Wagner

A win in the book is what this player is trying for. Shaundray Ramirez shoots for two points.

Eva Hunt dribbles down the floor for an open shot. She passes opponents for an easy layup.

A powerful layup is a strong asset to the game. Tuvya Green powers his way to make the shot.

An open shot is what a team looks for. Kendall Fullerton attempts to score a basket.

ADVERTISEMENTS

"The ads section...Hours of endless toil are represented within these pages. Throughout the year, the Laureate staff has gone to incredible lengths to convince advertisers to utilize the HHS yearbook--offering creative ideas, delivering sales pitches, and yes, even going off campus to meet with advertisers at times convenient to them. It is a thankless job.

"The staff would like to show their appreciation to these businesses by presenting the finest advertising available at HHS. "

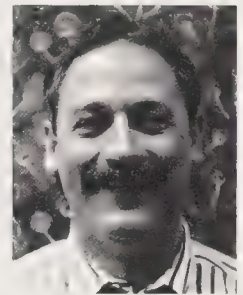

"My parents purchased a baby ad in the Laureate because they thought it would be nice in the future for me to reflect on their feelings at the time of my graduation." -Kristen Terebelski

"One of the goals of the Keywanettes is to support our school. Buying an ad in the Laureate is one way we accomplish this goal."

- Heather Medd

"Because the majority of patients we see in our orthodontic practice are children, we like to show our interest in student activities by annually purchasing an ad and yearbook from each of the schools located in our community."

-Dr. Farrar

Tanya King: Dear Tanya, Always believe in who you are and what you can do. Remember that limits exist only in your mind. Wherever your future takes you, our hearts will be with you. Congratulations!

We love you,
Mom, Dad, and Kevin

Derek Salyer: You have been a treasure through the years. You have many talents and accomplishments that have been a joy to watch unfold through the years. Continue through life with the determination you have shown us always.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Valdesse Jones: Thank you for the sunshine, joy, laughter, and music you brought to our lives. You have and will continue to touch people's lives in a wonderful way. Thank God for sharing you with us. (Pr. 3: 5-7)

Love,
Daddy & Mom

Venus Miller: Words can't describe the joy it's been to watch you mature into the beautiful young lady that you are today. Don't ever lose your sunny disposition. You have the ability to make your dreams come true. Just follow your star and "Be the Dream." You go girl!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Cam & Donnecca

Jennifer Pope: How quickly these past 18 years have gone by! We are very proud of you and your accomplishments. Don't ever lose your high standards, your strong determination, and your beautiful smile.

We love you, Jen.
Mom, Dad, and Lindsay

Lee Cox: We are proud of you. We respect your honesty, integrity, and we enjoy your unique sense of humor. Remember "To thine own self be true."

Love,
Mom and Dad

Mary Pelz: Our faith in your judgement, honesty, and integrity is limitless. Our confidence in you is endless. Our pride in you is boundless. You are truly admirable! It is an honor to be your parents!

We love you very much.
Mom, Dad, and the boys, too!

As another year vanishes and we must reflect on times gone by, we realize that at Hendersonville High School...

Some Things Never Change

Andrea,

Hey girl! Can you believe we are almost seniors! Only 1 more year. It seems like this year has flown by. I wish we had had some classes together so we could talk more. I miss hearing all of your stories this year. Hopefully we will have some classes together next year so I can get all the information on your life. You and Joe are so cute together. He is so sweet and good to you. You know I think he is one of your better choices. I hope you guys stay together forever! Even though we haven't talked as much this year, I want you to know that I still consider you one of my closest friends. You know I am always here for you if you ever need anything. Have a great summer. Call me sometime and we'll do something. You should come party with us this summer! We'd have a blast.

Love,
Rebecca Greene

Andrea,
 Hey girlie, It has been great having you in my 6th period class.
 Even though you didn't talk to me that much. (sniff-sniff) I'm glad you were able to find a nice young man - who can keep you happy. (Ha, Ha) I have also loved some of the conversations I have heard you have in 6th - boy you keep me laughing! I hope that you will continue to work hard in high - school, you too smart to give up now. Stay, Sweet, smart, pretty and my my buddy 3. I'll see you around!
 4/0 '94 rules Be good!
 Venus

Andrea,
 I love you very much and I will be going to visit I know you guys (Just look w/ see
 I will keep in touch.
 I'll keep you, but
 make a great summer!
 I'll see you around!

Andrea,
 I hope this year that you would be happy. It looks like you have just remembered the Kishy, Kirby, and Kirby will always be friends and it will be (come visit me this summer.
 I had to get out when you duck down and I have to drive.
 we took a little ride down zigzag to leave a little note and me busy with everything else. The next few had to be with and we didn't see each other. The way w/ the game on my part late at night. Just having fun. Their school starts you can't see little black cars at night. Remember? Swimming let's start with the most fun. Summer. Finding out that you can't see little black cars at night. Remember? Swimming

Andrea,

For the past 2 years that I've known you, I have found out what kind of person you are. From one of my family members (you know who) to Joe Hill I think our friendship has survived. In fact I think it has gotten even stronger. You are a well loved person and a real good friend and I want you to know you have made an impact on my life. You have really earned a place in my heart, my life and my soul. I really do love being real good friends with you. You are Sweet, loving, and very outgoing. I will miss you so much next year. Since I'm moving I won't be seeing you, so this is going to be my last goodbye. It hurts for me to say it, but I have to. I'll never forget you and I'll always love ya.

Love Ya Always,
Joseph Snijes

P.S.

Don't Never forget me.
Hopefully I'll see you
before I leave.

Dear Andrea: I'm signing
on the same page as Pepe!
Believe it or not, I have enjoyed having you in class.
I hope you won't forget everything you learned in here Geometry, French, etc. Take care of yourself + Joe. I guess I lost the bet. You are still with him. I love you.

Andrea,

Hi Dear! I guess I should write this in French since we are such good French students, but since I never really learned anything you'll have to deal with English. Geometry was so much fun too! What a surprise. I didn't learn anything in there either! Can you believe that next year you'll be a big senior? I can't! I hope you and Joe have a wonderful life together!
